Mayor Brown issued orders to Chief of Police McDermott to destroy the wine after Vitali had been found guilty.

The prisoner told the mayor that his wife was for his young son, who had nothing to do with the party said to have been held at his home prior to the shooting. He declared he was ill in bed at the time the shots were fired.

Mrs. Aubrey Dornan Directs Campaign to Raise $2,000 for Re-establishment of Nursing Service in City.

A circular letter, appealing for funds with which to re-establish Red Cross nursing service for at least two years, was forwarded Tuesday to approximately 175 business and professional men and manufacturers of the district by the executive committee of the East Liverpool Chapter of the Red Cross simultaneously with the opening of the annual campaign.

The letter points out that all Red Cross activities were suspended recently because of the depletion of finances. The work of the Red Cross in heading movements for the relief of the survivors of the Japanese earthquake and the Lorain disaster is cited.

Executive Committee's Letter. The letter, signed by the executive committee of which Mrs. H. C. Ostermann is chairman, follows: "As you are aware, our community has been deprived of Red Cross activities, in so far as civilian relief and nursing services are concerned, for some months. The depletion of finances at the command of your executive committee left no alternative and the work was necessarily suspended.

Your committee earnestly recommends that, at least, the nursing service be maintained for some years or until the accomplishments of the Red Cross are restored to the earliest possible date.

Coinciding with the annual Red Cross membership roll call, beginning Armistice Day, November 11, we are addressing this letter to you, as one of a number whom we believe appreciate the service rendered in the past to an extent away beyond the amount of a membership.

Under the leadership of your Red Cross organization the Japanese earthquake fund and the Lorain relief quota, as you know, were promptly met.

"Now, then, if 'charity begins at home'—let's do something?" "It is not the purpose of this committee to make solicitation from those to whom this letter is addressed, by personal visit, and we therefore trust that your check, the amount of which may be measured by your conception of the occasion, will be forthcoming promptly.

A committee of women, working under the direction of Mrs. Aubrey Dornan, roll call chairman, opened booths in downtown stores Tuesday.

Booths in theatres as well as in stores will be open daily until Thanksgiving day.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The assistant secretaryship of the navy is to remain in the Roosevelt family, it appeared here today.

Theodore Douglas Robinson, a nephew of the former president, has virtually been decided upon for the post. He will succeed Col. Theodore Roosevelt, his cousin, who resigned two months ago in order to run for the governorship of New York, for which office he was defeated by Governor Al Smith.

Davis Intends to Resign. WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis is the only member of the cabinet who has indicated to President Coolidge his intention to resign on March 4, it was announced officially at the White House today. Davis is now enroute to South America to make a investigation of immigration problems.

In connection with possible changes in the cabinet, it was pointed out, that an acting Secretary of a government department may not serve for more than 30 days, making it necessary for the President to fill a vacancy in the Department of Agriculture at the end of the month.

Howard M. Gore is now acting Secretary of the Agriculture Department and he may be appointed Secretary to serve until he leaves the government service to become governor of West Virginia.

Although President Coolidge may ask Secretary Davis to remain in the cabinet, it is understood that the latter has definitely decided to retire.

Federal Officers Say Rum Scandal Involving Mrs. Laura Patten and Lorenzo J. Patten, Lumber Operator, Will Shake Maine Society as 74 Indictments are Returned.

MACHIAS WOMAN MUST SERVE TWO MONTHS BEHIND STEEL BARS OF CELL

Master of Two Schooners, Used, Authorities Claim, in Smuggling Liquor to Coast, Denies Complicity, While Justice of Peace and Former Game Warden are Accused.

BANGOR, Maine, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Laura Patten, church and temperance leader of Machias, was sentenced to two months in jail by Judge Peters in federal court here when she pleaded guilty with her husband and a dozen other men to charges connecting them with liquor smuggling conspiracy for which 74 indictments have been issued. Federal officers say the rum scandal will shake Maine society.

Mrs. Patten has two children. Her husband received a six months' sentence. Lorenzo J. Patten, the temperance lecturer's husband, is a wealthy lumber operator. United States District Attorney Dyer told the court Mrs. Patten probably influenced her husband by her more forceful nature.

Captain William H. Hicks, master of two Eastport schooners, used, according to officers, in smuggling liquor to the Maine coast from Saint Pierre and L. Miquelon, pleaded not guilty to a conspiracy charge and was held in $5,000 bail. Federal investigators accuse him as being the directing head of the alleged conspiracy.

Thirteen of the other men who pleaded guilty received sentences ranging from one to six months. All were charged with illegal sale of liquor.

John Mastertail, a former game warden, and George Hansen, a justice of the peace, are among the others arrested. Hansen, son of the Machias port master, received a four months' sentence.

The secret indictments, as yet unserved, are said to name many prominent in business and official circles. The 15 sentenced have begun serving their terms in the local jail.

The round-up of those already arrested furnished many thrills and threw nearly a dozen towns into intense excitement. Federal men raced about the countryside in automobiles, taking men from their beds. Others from a dance at a grange hall.

Defendant's Children Weep. Victor Rossin, of Cherry Field, who was sentenced to four months, told the officers who arrested him he would commit suicide. They promised him a good funeral. But he did not end his life. Rossin's two children wept bitterly when he was taken to jail.

"I never realized it would come to this. It seemed so easy and the risk was so slight, but I learned my lesson. I'm through with that business forever."

CHURCH AND TEMPERANCE LEADER AND WELL-TO-DO HUSBAND PLEAD GUILTY

Federal Officers Say Rum Scandal Involving Mrs. Laura Patten and Lorenzo J. Patten, Lumber Operator, Will Shake Maine Society as 74 Indictments are Returned.

MACHIAS WOMAN MUST SERVE TWO MONTHS BEHIND STEEL BARS OF CELL

Master of Two Schooners, Used, Authorities Claim, in Smuggling Liquor to Coast, Denies Complicity, While Justice of Peace and Former Game Warden are Accused.

BANGOR, Maine, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Laura Patten, church and temperance leader of Machias, was sentenced to two months in jail by Judge Peters in federal court here when she pleaded guilty with her husband and a dozen other men to charges connecting them with liquor smuggling conspiracy for which 74 indictments have been issued. Federal officers say the rum scandal will shake Maine society.

Mrs. Patten has two children. Her husband received a six months' sentence. Lorenzo J. Patten, the temperance lecturer's husband, is a wealthy lumber operator. United States District Attorney Dyer told the court Mrs. Patten probably influenced her husband by her more forceful nature.

Captain William H. Hicks, master of two Eastport schooners, used, according to officers, in smuggling liquor to the Maine coast from Saint Pierre and I. Miquelon, pleaded not guilty to a conspiracy charge and was held in $5,000 bail. Federal investigators accuse him as being the directing head of the alleged conspiracy.

Thrills Mark Round Up.

Thirteen of the other men who pleaded guilty received sentences ranging from one to six months. All were charged with illegal sale of liquor.

John Mastertall, a former game warden, and George Hansen, a justice of the peace, are among the others arrested. Hansen, son of the Machias port master, received a four months' sentence.

The secret indictments, as yet unserved, are said to name many prominent in business and official circles. The 15 sentenced have begun serving their terms in the local jail.

The round-up of those already arrested furnished many thrills and threw nearly a dozen towns into intense excitement. Federal men rambled about the countryside in automobiles, taking men from their beds. Others from a dance at a grange hall.

Defendant's Children Weep.

Victor Rossin, of Cherry Field, who was sentenced to four months, told the officers who arrested him he would commit suicide. They promised him a good funeral. But he did not end his life. Rossin's two children wept bitterly when he was taken to jail.

Captain Hicks' plight is even sadder than his admission to jail indicates. He was released after an agreement with District Attorney Dyer to appear at the next term of the Portland court, changing his plea to that of guilty and receive a sentence in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta. In the interim he will return to Eastport and dispose of his two ships, trawling equipment and other gear of an honest fisherman. District Attorney Dyer, pleading for

Woman Promises She Will Never Sell Rum Again

MACHIAS, Maine, Nov. 11.—"I'll never do it again. I'll never sell another drop of liquor as long as I live."

With head bowed and tears streaming down her face, Mrs. Laura Patten, temperance worker and prominent in social circles, made this declaration today as she began her sentence of two months in jail for selling liquor.

"The disgrace is terrible. What will my children think? What will become of them while I am away? What must my friends think of me," she continued.

"I never realized it would come to this. It seemed so easy and the risk was so slight, but I learned my lesson. I'm through with that business forever."

VOTE EXPENSE REPORT SOUGHT

Election Board Clerk Calls for Candidates' Statements.

Expense accounts of candidates, who ran for county and district offices at the general election last Tuesday are beginning to reach the county election board.

Among the first candidates to report was George Wright, Republican sheriff-elect, who spent $175 in his campaign. C. E. Oliver, East Palestine Democrat, who was defeated for state representative by R. W. Emmons, East Rochester, his Republican opponent, expended $282.29.

The referendum committee, which worked for the defeat of the ordinance abolishing the office of police captain here, spent $30 in their campaign of advertising.

Candidates have until Friday midnight, ten days after the election, to certify their expense accounts. Those who fail to comply with this section of the state election laws are liable to prosecution.

ROSALIE HERRUP STARS AS TONDELEYO IN DRAMATIC SUCCESS, "WHITE CARGO"

Leon Gordon's Box Office Magnet, is Attraction at Ceramic Theatre Tuesday Evening.

Even if Rosalie Herrup were not the only female in the cast of "White Cargo," most audiences would be sufficiently impressed with her performance to ask of their seatmates, as they do, "In what have I seen here before?"

As a matter of fact and record, unalienable patrons of the drama have never seen Rosalie Herrup before, unless the box office men of the musical comedy and vaudeville theatres have also seen the color of their money—or passes. For "White Cargo" marks the initiation of Miss Herrup as a bona fide interpreter of dramatic roles.

Interesting inadequately describes her stage career of 14 years, but strange indeed has been her lack of desire to appear in a dramatic show. Agencies that make a profession of supplying the proper type of actresses to producers on a percentage basis could have realized great returns on Rosalie had it not been practical to consult the young woman about her theatrical preferences first. Until a few weeks ago Miss Herrup would consider nothing but "big time" vaudeville and musical comedy engagements. She responded to the plays of the great American dramatists only as a spectator, but as an honest-to-God actress who cried real tears and must make herself hateful at times, as her role in "White Cargo" requires—never!

Perhaps her only stage training had something to do with it. But whether it had or not, she deserted her seat in high school to do splits in one of Gus Edwards' acts which featured talented youngsters with a vengeance or as a gesture of contempt to most of us who used to stutter and splutter.

ter "The Village Blacksmith" in the assembly room.

Crime or not, merit, like crime, will out. Rosalie Herrup became the prima donna of Gus Edwards' act in three weeks. Alienable patrons of the drama may have seen her in that. Or they may have seen her later with Charles Ruggles in a vaudeville sketch called "Naughty Diana." If not in that, there is Bobby Higgins' act and Rich-Carlisle's vaudeville skit to help them trace her impressive personality. Or perhaps it was in the musical comedy "Good Morning, Judge" or in "Ed Wynn's show, "Over the Top."

Motion picture fans may discover a strong resemblance between Rosalie Herrup and the comely young Miss who used to goad Max Fleischer's clown in the "Out of the Inkwell" series of comedies.

But no matter now, Leon Gordon, the author of "White Cargo" has at last persuaded her to adopt the faith of the drama via the matchless role of Tondeleyo, and Earl Carroll, the producer, vows that she shall not desert it as long as it is within his power to make it attractive to her and to audiences who may see both.

Famous Director Behind Megaphone in Film, "Revelations"

After two years of retirement from motion pictures, George D. Baker, one of the most famous of directors was lured back to Hollywood to put on Metro's all-star production of "Revelations," now at the American Theatre. Two years ago, Mr. Baker went abroad to enjoy the fruits of his labors and thought he would never go back to the studios. But when Metro officials approached him with the offer to make "Revelations," the temptation was too much, and Mr. Baker returned to the glare of the Kilg lights.

The Metro director came by his stage and screen success by following the straight line toward his goal. As a boy in the village of Beatrice, Nebraska, he had an excellent opportunity in his father's office, but he wanted to be an actor. Accordingly he spent two years of hard study in a Chicago dramatic school. Later he played important roles in support of Walker Whiteside and Nance O'Neill.

Road Works Completed
COLUMBUS, O.—Surface treatments with tar and asphalt on state roads have been completed earlier this year than ever before, according to the announcement of State Highway Director L. A. Boulay. A special effort, he said, was made to complete the work early this year because when the weather is cold the tar applied to the road does not dry quickly and hence is a source of annoyance to the traveling public.

at a dinner in honor of President-elect Calles of Mexico.
"Mexico needs at this time and will have a leader who is competent and disposed to secure for her a fulfillment of the hopes and aspirations of a deserving people. President-elect Calles will hold up and carry the Mexican flag and his people will follow. If the president will consult the rights and best interests of the Mexicans and at the same time consider the interests and rights of foreign nations and their people so far as propriety and justice require, as we feel certain he will do, there need be no doubt concerning the success of his administration. He is in every respect well qualified to lead in conducting the affairs of his country. By education, experience and instinct he is well equipped to properly decide and carry into practical effect all questions which may confront him. His opportunities are very great and he will not falter nor fail.

"We think just now the Mexican national horizon is exceedingly bright and that her new president is a conspicuous part of the view which is presented."

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, N.Y.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I can not praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer."—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N.Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.
These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs. Isn't it reasonable to expect the same results?
If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

She little realized to what bitter consequences her extremes of folly might lead. POLICE ARREST FOUR SUSPECTS

Nab Quartet of Italians After Auto Chase.

After an exciting automobile chase through streets in the lower section of the city, which ultimately came to an abrupt termination in a "blind alley" in Buckeye avenue, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, local police Monday night captured four Italians suspected of auto stealing.

The quartet comprises Louis Jannanzo of 1774 Buckeye avenue, charged with possessing intoxicating liquor.

Louis Sarfino of Michigan, charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Sam Pann of Michigan, suspected in connection with auto thefts.

Sam Lascola of Scottdale, Pa., charged with carrying concealed weapons.

Jannanzo was fined $500 and costs amounting to $5.60 on the liquor count. He, as well as the other three, are in the city jail here.

Police confiscated the automobile, a large sedan, in which the quartet rode, and, in addition, obtained two .32 calibre Colt automatics and a long knife in a search of their clothing and a half-gallon of whisky and a gallon of wine from the machine.

The automobile is being held in the fire station near Ninth street.

Police, it is said, were tipped off to the presence of the men in the city and Chief of Police Fultz and Officers Pugh, Hurd, Newton, Oyster and James Barnes Jr., after a city-wide search, discovered the men in their automobile near Eighteenth street.

The Italians recognized the police as they approached and the machine sped westward, closely followed by the police.

After hazardous corner turning at top speed racing along the level stretches, the chase wound up in Buckeye avenue when the police quarry could go no further. Here they surrendered and were stripped of their weapons. Hearings probably will be held Tuesday.

DR. BIEDERWOLF KIWANIS GUEST

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, evangelist who is conducting services at the tabernacle in East Liverpool, addressed members of the Wellsville Kiwanis club at their noon luncheon meeting Monday in the Riverview hotel.

The meeting took the form of a father and son assembly, fathers bringing their boys and members without sons being accompanied by younger guests.

The program for the day was in charge of C. J. Vigel. In addition to Rev. Biederwolf's address, several song selections were given by William McEwan, Dr. Biederwolf's song leader.

PARADE OPENS VETS' PROGRAM

With a brief talk by F. L. Wells, followed by a street parade of ex-service men, school children and others. The program will continue throughout the day, with events scheduled for both afternoon and evening. School children throughout the city will enjoy a half holiday.

Ex-service men's color bearers, guard, firing squad, members of various patriotic organizations, school children and others marched in the parade, which went west in the city as far as Eighteenth street and east again to Third.

The Wellsville Webster Billiards and the Salineville Nash Motors were scheduled to clash at 2:30 o'clock at Central park in the afternoon football game.

The program will come to a close at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening with a fireworks display in Central park.

Police Seek Herman Crook.

Local police have asked the co-operation of valley authorities in their search for Herman Crook, 22 years old, who is wanted on a charge here. Crook is described as weight approximately 150 pounds and wearing a light cap, tan shoes and brown suit. He was driving a small coupe with a New York license plate on the front and a "home made" plate on the rear.

This Nurse Just Couldn't Stop Coughing

Specialists Didn't Help

It takes more than ordinary sweet, syrupy cough mixture to stop a stubborn cough that persists in hanging on.

For slight ordinary coughs almost any decent cough syrup will do, but if you have one of those tough ones that won't yield to common remedies and often keeps you awake at night then your one best bet is Broncholine Emulsion.

Often one half bottle forces the most stubborn cough to yield and you are better almost before you know it. There is no sugar, chloroform or dope in Broncholine Emulsion. It's a wonderful medicine for people who are getting over a heavy cold or an attack of flu.

A New York nurse just couldn't stop coughing even after consulting specialists yet, one half bottle of Broncholine Emulsion did stop it—completely.

Ask Jesse D. Holloway, Carnahan's Drug Stores, East Liverpool and Newell, W. Va., or any good dealer for a bottle often three or four doses will stop an ordinary cough.

China's Finance

Now at Low Ebb; Trade is Affected

WASHINGTON—The continued disruption of transportation as a result of military operations and the extreme tightness of the money market is seriously affecting the trade of China, according to information cabled the Department of Commerce by Commercial Attache Julian Arnold, of Peking.

Although the operation of coastwise and Yangtze River vessels has not been stopped, the general uncertainty has resulted in very light cargo movements, Arnold reported.

In North China rail traffic continues to be disrupted. Consul-General C. E. Gauss, Tientsin, said that the requisitioning of transportation by the military is seriously curtailing the arrival of cargo from interior points. In consequence, export sales are confined to spot transactions and stocks of import materials are becoming excessive.

In Shanghai the native banks are quoting money as high as 30 per cent.

Every lady attending the matinee at the American Theatre Wed., Thur. and Fri., Nov. 12, 13 and 14, will receive a loaf of Betsy Ross Bread free.

Absolutely no charge unless you are satisfied to keep the Outfit after having the Appliance adjusted and you see how perfectly and comfortably it holds. It is the one Method that you are not asked to take on faith alone—the one Method that is positively demonstrated to you, right on your own person, without any charge whatever. You do not spend a penny unless, after having a full and complete demonstration, you decide that this is the Method for you.

Don't wear ordinary trusses all your life when thousands have reported permanent relief through using the Rice Method. EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1924.

Armistice Day

Six years ago today joy supplanted sorrow as news of the Armistice, thus ending hostilities in the World War, was flashed to all corners of the world. Immediately church bells, factory, steamer and locomotive whistles, automobile sirens and every conceivable noise-making device were brought into play in the impromptu celebration that followed in every city and hamlet in the United States and many communities in Europe. But despite the lessons of that holocaust, there is talk today in some quarters of "the next war."

Judging from reports that a section of science is still devoted to seeking means by which still greater wholesale slaughter of human beings can be effected than in the 1914-18 shambles, it is apparent that much is yet to be done to assure settlement of international differences by peaceful measures.

Today, in many cities of the country, in keeping with the meaning Armistice Day is supposed to have, prayers are being offered that armed strife may be ended. In an appeal to its many units, the Federal Council of Churches proposes the observance of Armistice Day as a "mobilization day" for the forces working for peace. The Council says: "Six years have passed since the Armistice brought the fighting of the World War to an end. But permanent world peace and national security are still to be achieved. "Great church assemblies have recently issued stirring calls to their members to grapple with the stupendous task of overthrowing the war-system of the world and to outlaw and banish war."

"The Federal Council of the Churches now suggests that all churches, pastors and congregations in the United States observe the anniversary of the Armistice as an appropriate time to mobilize their forces for this imperative task. This would be a fitting tribute to those who gave their lives in the World War."

Aside from fitting recognition of the significance of the day by Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, conducting the union evangelistic services in the Washington and Second streets' tabernacle, and the launching of the annual roll call of the Red Cross, there will be no formal celebration in East Liverpool. Investment Chances

The World's Work tells of a woman who ran the following advertisement in a New York newspaper:

"Widow with $15,000 from her husband's life insurance wishes to invest it to obtain highest possible return. The investment must be safe and must give regular income. Reply, giving full details."

Appearing only once, in one newspaper, and occupying only half an inch of space, this brief ad demonstrated two things. One was the tremendous number of persons reached by even such a small advertisement as this. The other was the astonishing number of promoters and get-rich-quick specialists waiting to take advantage of every ignorant investor.

The advertiser in this case received 55 prompt replies. Only four of these replies were the sort that would appeal to an experienced investor, for either their safety or suitability. And one of this small group had a tempting catch in it, since the writer first offered a good guaranteed railroad stock and then added that if she wished to take a "reasonable business chance" he could offer her something with larger returns.

All the other 51 replies, with the exception of one offer of marriage, were out-and-out promotion schemes, fakes at the worst, very uncertain at the best. Oil, gum opium, aerial transportation, "opportunities" in many varieties of manufacturing and selling enterprises, all promising "handsome" returns, or the doubling or trebling of her investment within a year's time, were set enticingly before the widow because of her $15,000.

Fifty-one dubious schemes against four honest propositions is a rather startling contrast. Is it any wonder that foolish and ignorant persons with small sums to invest are misled, tricked and cheated every day?

YOUR THOUGHTS AND CONDUCT

Leonardo Da Vinci painted his "Last Supper" on the rear wall of a church in Milan, Napoleon stabbed his horses in the church. The horses kicked away much of the painting.

People from all lands visit the old church each year, and as they study the beautiful faces, now grown dim, they moralize about Napoleon, about Da Vinci's peasant mother, about time's ravages and other things.

They might well moralize over the story of Da Vinci's great model—if they knew it.

Here is the story; it applies to every human being. You can make it of use to yourself without going to the church in Milan.

DA VINCI'S GREAT PAINTING

The artist sought to express the widest possible range of character study to his great painting. Laboriously during many years, he sought and sketched types of men.

The 11 good disciples were first painted, and then Da Vinci began eagerly seeking for a face worthy to serve as a foundation for his inspired portrait of Christ.

He found a face that pleased him at last. It was that of a young man singing in the Milan cathedral.

It was a beautiful face, breathing a spirit of truth and of lofty idealism. The young man gladly accepted the honor offered him and posed for the face that today looks out so calm and gentle among the 12 disciples.

Only one face then remained to be painted—that of Judas, the traitor.

Throughout the falls and through haunts of crime Da Vinci sought a face that should embody the hideous depravity, the utter baseness of a spirit that could betray the gentlest of men.

He found his model at last in a prison cell in Rome. The face was not that of an old man. But vice, evil thoughts, evil living gave it the stamp of sunken humanity which the painter sought.

The face was painted as the face of Judas—and after the work was done Da Vinci learned, through an accident, that the young man who had posed for the face of Jesus was the same as he who in the prison cell had posed for the face of Judas.

A few years of evil living had done the work. Such a change had been made in those few years that the painter himself, familiar through long work with the model's face, utterly failed to recognize it.

NOTE "THE LAST SUPPER"

The story is often heard with incredulity. But why should it be heard with incredulity?

Can you recognize a stream of pure spring water after it has run through the gutter of a city?

Can you believe that the face twitching under the black mask, as the hangman mounts the scaffold, was once the face of a pretty young child, loved by its mother and seeming in every man's eyes the embodiment of permanent innocence?

Each city magistrate, when he climbs to his police court seat, sees a row of unhappy women before him. They vary in age from 20 to 60. Listlessly he sentences these women—sometimes for "crimes" in which the responsible criminal goes free. Would one of these miserable women be recognized by those who knew her when her face reflected a pure mind? Not one, except, perhaps, some mother whose eyes see through all the marks of a hard world and into the soul that cannot be destroyed.

FACES OF JESUS AND JUDAS

Have you ever seen a photograph of yourself made when you were a child?

You have laughed at the old pictures, probably, at the old-fashioned clothing, the "best suit" with the wide black braid, or the funny old dress.

Look again at the picture of your childhood, and look seriously. You will be a fortunate man or woman if you can look and not mope anything.

Look carefully at the eyes and mouth. Study the expression. Do you find none of the frankness, freshness, truth or other good qualities missing?

The woman who has devoted her life to pleasure, to dissipation, to vanity, to eager pursuit of worthless, excitement, looks bitterly in her glass as the years go by. The peace has gone, the youth has been replaced not by calm, self-respecting age, but by bitter regret that stains all the expression, deadens the eyes and makes the face look out at its years ago as is the face of Judas from that of Jesus in the great picture of Milan.

The moral in the story of Da Vinci's model does not apply to extreme cases alone.

It applies to the middle-aged man made hard—hard inside and out—by persistent, selfish hunting for money.

It applies to the newspaper man who thinks that "journalism makes men pessimistic," but who ought to know that lack of sincere interest in other men is what "makes men pessimistic."

When your life is ended, so far as material accomplishment goes, you may have money, you may have fame, you may be envied by others. But for yourself you will only have one possession really important—your opinion of yourself, based on your knowledge of what you have really aimed at and really done.

Your face will tell the story of your life at its various phases. It will tell the whole story toward the end, as you look in the glass and see in every line and in the whole expression whether you have been true or false to the start and the possibilities that nature gave you.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—In a musty file-room on the top floor of the United States treasury are some of the government's most remarkable documents, and buried with them is a human-interest story such as seldom comes to light in the massive stone building that is the commercial center of the world's greatest business—the American government.

zulu these files, guarded by an aged clerk who for years has watched them grow, are held the records of the government "conscience fund," thousands of letters from individuals all over the United States, who have sent their contributions with the explanation that they have robbed the government in sums ranging from a few cents to thousands of dollars.

The latest remittance came from an anonymous person at Santa Cruz, Cal. He, or she, mailed three fifty-dollar bills and one twenty, accompanied by an unsigned letter declaring:

"I think I owe this much to the government."

During the history of the United States a total of $380,000 has been deposited in the conscience fund, later to find its way to the general fund, from which the ordinary expenditures of the government are drawn.

No effort has ever been made by the authorities to pry into the secrets back of these unusual human documents. Although it would be comparatively easy to identify many contributors, and to prosecute them for their confessed violation of the statutes, it is an unwritten law at the treasury that these letters shall go unquestioned into the ancient morgue, to remain there as long as the United States exists.

The conscience fund was originated in 1811 during the administration of President Madison. A man remitted $5 to the treasury, he said that he had robbed the government of that amount and that, as it was preying on his conscience, he desired to make restitution.

It was recorded that the incident was brought to the personal attention of President Madison, who decided that an accurate check should be maintained on "conscience money."

Thirty thousand dollars, in crisp $1,000 notes, sent to the treasury by parcel post, is the record contribution. An accompanying letter declared "this and $80,000 more I've remitted at different times make up four times the amount I stole from the government years ago."

The files show that numbers of veterans of the Civil war repaid the government for mules, blankets, saddles and other equipment misappropriated during the conflict. One or two soldiers of the World war, their misuse of government property weighing heavily on their conscience, have mailed money to the government.

Conscience contributions are becoming more and more frequent, according to officials. For several years an annual average of about $40,000 has been maintained.

Some officials said that the income tax laws may have something to do with the increase in conscience remittances, although it is difficult to avoid payment owing to the activities of the internal revenue bureau in prosecuting persons who violate the law.

Frequent appeals have been made to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon that the funds contributed under the head of "conscience money" should be devoted to special charitable or relief purposes by the government. However, no action of this character can be taken under the law, it was pointed out.

Formerly the conscience fund letters were open to public inspection, as income tax figures were thrown open in the 1924 tax law. Some years ago, however, an order was issued that the letters, being highly personal and confidential, must be considered privileged. Since that time access to the files has been difficult.

Most of the letters fail to state in what manner the funds were misused. Frequently the letters are undated, the place of their mailing being determined only by the postmark.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—I spent an evening recently in New York with a group of cowboys as the guest of my friend Tex Austin. Here were real and hardy riders of the purple sage—bronk busters, calf ropers, steer wrestlers and kings of the lariat.

More than any men I know the cowpunchers link America of the east with the present. They are as genuine, unspoiled and sturdy as our virgin forests. There is not an ounce of four flush in the whole outfit. After living in New York many years you appreciate this.

Even their names smack of the pristine purity of the plains—Nowater Slim, California Frank, Scout Malish, Buff Brady, Hank Durnell, Soapy Williams, Red Sublett and Del Bledsoe. After the slick hating verbiage of the Manhattanese you warm to the cowboy's drawing "Howdy."

He is the rough and ready adventurer of the first water. He pays his own expenses and entry fee to every rodeo without receiving a cent of guarantee and relies only on his own skill to win the prizes. He exhausts the fury of a bucking horse as nonchalantly as he smokes a cigar.

The cowboy is smugly indifferent to the wonders of the metropolis. Many of them come here to the Madison Square Garden rodeos and never leave the building. They eat at the chuck-wagon. The world of horses and steers satisfies.

After the great arena had been cleared and all lights save two small incandescents were extinguished I crossed through the building with Austin. A shadowy figure on horseback was galloping about.

"He's moonlighting," a bronk," said Austin. At the hours when Broadway was being whipped into its aerated pleasure froth there was something tremendously impressive to me in that lonely cowboy galloping about a deserted, ghostly building in the very heart of America's pleasure ground.

The cowboy's lingo is also interesting to the tenderfoot. When he is thrown from a bronk or wild steer, he calls it "eating gravel." The word "Broncho" is from the Mexican word for "mean." It has been shortened to "bronk" in cowboy parlance.

The easterner regards polo as one of his most dangerous sports. It is polite bean-gang compared to the cowboy's sport of bull-dogging a steer. If there is anything more daring than the cowboy's leap from a horse going likely split to the horns of a steer, then twisting the animal to the ground with a wrestling hold I have never seen it.

My own experiences with horses have been altogether unsatisfactory. When I am one one I am always reminded of the cartoon of the man on a horse who was asked, "Where are you going?" "How do I know?" he replied. "Ask the horse."

There was a calico pony I used to ride in Plattsburg, Mo., to visit my grandfather on his farm. It was blind in one eye, had the heaves and was otherwise disgruntled. It required great effort to get him into an ordinary jog. But one day at the sight of a threshing machine he decided to spurt. He wheeled about suddenly and made for the livery stable. I lost the stirrups and I have a painful memory of going through the main residential street shouting "Somebody, please stop him!" And to make it worse a young lady at whom I had been casting sheep's eyes was sitting in a hammock on her front porch. Copyrighted, 1924, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

DINNER STORIES

An American in London was bragging about his automobile. He ended his eulogy by declaring: "It runs so smoothly that you can't feel it, so quietly you can't hear it, has such perfect ignition you can't smell it, and as for speed—hey, you can't see it."

"But, my word, old dear," interrupted the Briton, anxiously, "how do you know the bally thing is there?"

The man in the corner seat was heard to groan so terribly that he frightened the other passengers, and one hastily produced a flask and told him to take a good swig at it.

"Which he did."

"Do you feel better now?" asked the giver.

"I do that," said the man in the corner.

"What were you suffering from?"

"Suffering from?"

"Yes; what made you groan so?"

"Groan! Why, confound you, I was singing."

As the model was leaving an artist's studio he called to him:

"Tomorrow I have to paint a foot. For goodness sake don't forget to wash!"

The model was already on the street when a most important doubt occurred to him. Hurriedly he made his way back to the studio.

"Excuse me," he said to the painter, "which foot is it that you intend to paint?"

ROME AND THE SKYSCRAPER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The report that Premier Mussolini, of Italy, has approved plans for an 80-story skyscraper to be built in Rome has drawn much unfavorable comment. Architects feel that the massive splendor of the old Roman ruins towering against the sky line.

Rome would have the distinction of possessing the greatest skyscraper of them all—a structure far more fearful and wonderful than New York's 58-story Woolworth building or its 50-story Metropolitan. But that Rome would be made more beautiful or really more impressive by its new possession is seriously questioned.

It is impossible that there should be any plan to introduce a number of such buildings into Rome and to make of it a second New York. The Italian capital has plenty of space in which to develop, and does not need to shoot up to the skies. The 80-story building is apparently proposed as an isolated spectacle, a tour de force—if, indeed, the report is correct as to the height.

The fact is, European cities do not take kindly to the American invention of the tall building. In Europe, a six or eight-story commercial structure, about 80 feet tall, is regarded as a skyscraper, and there are few of even this height. The tallest in Europe is in Vienna and is only 82 feet high. The limit for commercial buildings in London is 80 feet, in Rome it is 78 feet, and in Paris 65.

No doubt European architects realize that the tall building might be a profitable venture for builders and a convenience for tenants. It enables a great many more business concerns to operate close together than low, spread out offices ever can. Nevertheless, even in crowded sections of big European cities, zoning regulations strictly limit the height of buildings.

Paris was alarmed by the skyscraper menace last spring, when a few eight and nine-story apartment houses were planned, and when work was really started on one of them. The controversy raged again when London authorized the construction of a building that would tower a few feet above the 80-foot limit.

Many American architects are no more anxious for the skyscraper idea to emigrate to Europe than the Europeans are. Architects regard the tall building not merely as a modern development, but as an American development. The idea cannot be casually transplanted to other lands.

NEW YORK'S SKY LINE

The sky line of New York, seen from the harbor, is one of the finest features of the city. The tall buildings have varied and beautiful outlines, and their towers fairly melt into the clouds. There are enough of them so that they do not look like monstrous freaks. They are a fitting part of Manhattan as the result of a peculiar combination of circumstances.

The crowded narrow island needed to make every inch of ground count. Business could not spread outward; it had to spread upward. Improvements in making steel came just in time to make this possible. The first skeleton steel structure was erected in Indianapolis in the seventies. It was four stories high. Then New York and Chicago began to experiment with height. By 1888, Broadway had an 11-story building with only 21 feet of frontage. This "Tower Building" was derisively called a card house by some New Yorkers, but it stood firm until it was torn down in 1908.

The tall, thin type of building was a curiosity at first, but its usefulness was undeniable in a city like New York. Other builders went to work to show what they could do with steel frame construction. Office structures became higher and higher, until the Woolworth building set a formidable record with its 68 stories, rising 722 feet from the street to the top of its tower. A new height record in residential construction was recently set, when a 32-story bachelor hotel was built.

Most of the recent office buildings are not in the line with those closest to the sky. The competition among builders to put up the tallest possible structure has about ceased. These structures are no longer easily governed by mere height in a building. It has become apparent, too, that a large number of extremely tall structures cannot very well be located close together, especially in a district where streets are narrow. Too much air and light would be shut off, and the congestion when workers poured in and out of the buildings would be intense.

BUILDING IN TERRACES

To prevent such conditions, zoning regulations have put restrictions on the location of tall buildings and on their construction. These regulations are directly influencing the styles in skyscrapers. They are responsible, for instance, for the tower style of the newer tall buildings.

The lower floors of one of these giant buildings may cover a city square. Above the fifteenth or possibly the seventeenth floor the building becomes a little smaller in diameter, and at intervals the terraced effect is repeated until the top is a small tower. This style of architecture has proved far more effective than the tall squared off building. Architects say that the pleasing effect of a skyscraper fading away mysteriously into the sky is obtained as a result of the terraced plan.

When skyscrapers appeared on the horizon like an exotic breed of construction they were plain boxes with innumerable little windows, or else they were heavily ornamented in ways suited to lower buildings. Few of them won the unstinted admiration of the architects of the country. Elevators and skeleton steel construction—strictly modern developments—had brought into being this strange form of architecture which had never before existed in the history of the world. It seemed next to impossible to apply the traditional principles of construction to tall box-like cave dwellings so as to get artistic results.

But gradually the tall building has been coming into its own. Designers have studied its problems of mass, proportion and silhouette. They have learned to make the decorative detail smaller and simpler, so that the buildings may not seem top heavy or over-dressed. No one can look at some of the more recent plans or at the best of the completed buildings without realizing that the ugly duckling skyscrapers do not apply merely to buildings over 20 stories high. Only a few cities find use for super-tall structures in their business centers, but the skyscraper in the European sense is a landmark in every American city.

One architect finds that height limits between 100 and 200 feet obtain in most of our cities, and Boston with an 80-foot limit is about the most conservative city in this respect in the United States. The tower order of skyscrapers, from 10 to 20 stories tall, is becoming, in the hands of the artist, a work of art, perhaps the most typically American art form in existence.

Farmer Giles, canvassing for members for a raffle, asked one of his neighbors to enter.

"George," he said, "be you agoin' in for my raffle?"

"How much?" asked George.

"Five shillings," was the reply.

"Put me down," answered George. "I'll pay ye tomorrow."

Next day the two met again.

"Well," said George, "who won the prize?"

"I won the first prize," said the farmer. "I got 1 lucky!"

"Who won the second?"

"My wife won the second; wasn't she lucky?"

"And who won the third?" queried George patiently.

"My darter; wasn't he lucky? By the way you haven't paid your five shilling yet."

"No," said George. "Wasn't I lucky?"

Armistice Day

Six years ago today joy supplanted sorrow as news of the Armistice, thus ending hostilities in the World War, was flashed to all corners of the world. Immediately church bells, factory, steamer and locomotive whistles, automobile sirens and every conceivable noise-making device were brought into play in the impromptu celebration that followed in every city and hamlet in the United States and many communities in Europe. But despite the lessons of that holocaust, there is talk today in some quarters of "the next war."

Judging from reports that a section of science is still devoted to seeking means by which still greater wholesale slaughter of human beings can be effected than in the 1914-18 shambles, it is apparent that much is yet to be done to assure settlement of international differences by peaceful measures.

Today, in many cities of the country, in keeping with the meaning Armistice Day is supposed to have, prayers are being offered that armed strife may be ended. In an appeal to its many units, the Federal Council of Churches proposes the observance of Armistice Day as a "mobilization day" for the forces working for peace. The Council says:

"Six years have passed since the Armistice brought the fighting of the World War to an end. But permanent world peace and national security are still to be achieved.

"Great church assemblies have recently issued stirring calls to their members to grapple with the stupendous task of overthrowing the war-system of the world and to outlaw and banish war.

"The Federal Council of the Churches now suggests that all churches, pastors and congregations in the United States observe the anniversary of the Armistice as an appropriate time to mobilize their forces for this imperative task. This would be a fitting tribute to those who gave their lives in the World War."

Aside from fitting recognition of the significance of the day by Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, conducting the union evangelistic services in the Washington and Second streets' tabernacle, and the launching of the annual roll call of the Red Cross, there will be no formal celebration in East Liverpool. Besides offering a prayer for outlawing war, join in the peacetime movement of the angel of mercy by enrolling in the Red Cross which aims to aid suffering humanity.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—In a musty file-room on the top floor of the United States treasury are some of the government's most remarkable documents, and buried with them is a human-interest story such as seldom comes to light in the massive stone building that is the commercial center of the world's greatest business—the American government.

In these files, guarded by an aged clerk who for years has watched them grow, are held the records of the government "conscience fund;" thousands of letters from individuals all over the United States, who have sent their contributions with the explanation that they have robbed the government in sums ranging from a few cents to thousands of dollars.

The latest remittance came from an anonymous person at Santa Cruz, Cal. He, or she, mailed three fifty-dollar bills and one twenty, accompanied by an unsigned letter declaring:

"I think I owe this much to the government."

During the history of the United States a total of $380,000 has been deposited in the conscience fund, later to find its way to the general fund, from which the ordinary expenditures of the government are drawn.

No effort has ever been made by the authorities to pry into the secrets back of these unusual human documents. Although it would be comparatively easy to identify many contributors, and to prosecute them for their confessed violation of the statutes, it is an unwritten law at the treasury that these letters shall go unquestioned into the ancient morgue, to remain there as long as the United States exists.

The conscience fund was originated in 1811 during the administration of President Madison. A man remitted $5 to the treasury, he said that he had robbed the government of that amount and that, as it was paying on his conscience, he desired to make restitution.

It was recorded that the incident was brought to the personal attention of President Madison, who decided that an accurate check should be maintained on "conscience money."

Thirty thousand dollars, in crisp $1,000 notes, sent to the treasury by parcel post, is the record contribution. An accompanying letter declared "This and $80,000 more I've remitted at different times make up four times the amount I stole from the government years ago."

The files show that numbers of veterans of the Civil war repaid the government for mules, blankets, saddles and other equipment misappropriated during the conflict. One or two soldiers of the World war, their misuse of government property weighing heavily on their conscience, have mailed money to the government.

Conscience contributions are becoming more and more frequent, according to officials. For several years an annual average of about $40,000 has been maintained.

Some officials said that the income tax laws may have something to do with the increase in conscience remittances, although it is difficult to avoid payment owing to the activities of the internal revenue bureau in prosecuting persons who violate the law.

Frequent appeals have been made to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon that the funds contributed under the head of "conscience money" should be devoted to special charitable or relief purposes by the government. However, no action of this character can be taken under the law, it was pointed out.

Formerly the conscience fund letters were open to public inspection, as income tax figures were thrown open in the 1924 tax law. Some years ago, however, an order was issued that the letters, being highly personal and confidential, must be considered privileged. Since that time access to the files has been difficult.

Most of the letters fail to state in what manner the funds repaid were misused. Frequently the letters are undated, the place of their mailing being determined only by the postmark.

Mrs. William Price, of St. George street, left yesterday for Mt. Clemens, Mich., to join her husband, who is employed there.

While alighting from a rapidly moving street car yesterday, Dr. W. G. McDade, of Mulberry street, slipped into a hole and seriously sprained his right ankle.

Theodore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burke, of Lincoln avenue, is convalescing from an attack of diphtheria.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Lina Collins and Leo Allison, which took place October 28.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—I spent an evening recently in New York with a group of cowboys as the guest of my friend Tex Austin. Here were real and hardy riders of the purple sage—bronk busters, calf ropers, steer wrestlers and kings of the lariat.

More than any men I know the cow-punchers link America of the east with the present. They are as genuine, unspoiled and sturdy as our virgin forests. There is not an ounce of four flush in the whole outfit. After living in New York many years you appreciate this.

Even their names smack of the pristine purity of the plains—Nowater Slim, California Frank, Scout Marsh, Buff Brady, Hank Durnell, Soapy Williams, Red Sullett and Del Hedgcock. After the slick hating verbiage of the Manhattanese you warm to the cowboy's drabbing "Howdy."

He is the tough and ready adventurer of the first water. He pays his own expenses and entry fee to every rodeo without receiving a cent of guarantee and relies only on his own skill to win the prizes. He exhorts the fury of a bucking horse as nonchalantly as he smokes a cigar.

The cowboy is smugly indifferent to the wonders of the metropolis. Many of them come here to the Madison Square Garden rodeos and never leave the building. They eat at the chuck-wagon. The world of horses and steers satisfies.

After the great arena had been cleared and all lights save two small incandescents were extinguished I crossed through the building with Austin. A shadowy figure on horseback was galloping about.

"He's moonlightin' a bronk," said Austin. At the hours when Broadway was being whipped into its acerbated pleasure froth there was something tremendously impressive to me in that lonely cowboy galloping about a deserted, ghostly building in the very heart of America's pleasure ground.

The cowboy's lingo is also interesting to the tenderfoot. When he is thrown from a bronk or wild steer, he calls it "eating gravel." The word "Broncho" is from the Mexican word for "mean." It has been shortened to "bronk" in cowboy parlance.

The easterner regards polo as one of his most dangerous sports. It is polite bean-gag compared to the cowboy's sport of bull-dogging a steer. If there is anything more daring than the cowboy's leap from a horse going lickety split to the horns of a steer, then twisting the animal to the ground with a wrestling hold I have never seen it.

My own experiences with horses have been altogether unsatisfactory. When I am one one I am always reminded of the cartoon of the man on a horse who was asked: "Where are you going?"

"How do I know?" he replied. "Ask the horse."

There was a calico pony I used to ride in Plattsburg, Mo., to visit my grandfather on his farm. It was blind in one eye, had the heaves and was otherwise dispirited. It required great effort to get him into an ordinary jog. But one day at the sight of a threshing machine he decided to spurt. He wheeled about suddenly and I made for the livery stable. I lost the stirrups and I have a painful memory of going through the main residential street shouting "Somebody, please stop him!" And to make it worse a young lady at whom I had been casting sheep's eyes was sitting in a hammock on her front porch.

DINNER STORIES

An American in London was bragging about his automobile. He ended his eulogy by declaring: "It runs so smoothly that you can't feel it, so quietly you can't hear it, has such perfect ignition you can't smell it, and as for speed—hey, you can't see it."

"But, my word, old dear," interrupted the Briton, anxiously, "how do you know the bally thing is there?"

The man in the corner seat was heard to groan so terribly that he frightened the other passengers, and one hastily produced a flask and told him to take a good swig at it.

Which he did.

"Do you feel better now?" asked the giver.

"I do that," said the man in the corner.

"What were you suffering from?"

"Suffering from?"

"Yes; what made you groan so?"

"Grosal! Why, confound you, I was singing."

As the model was leaving an artist's studio he called to him: "Tomorrow I have to paint a foot. For goodness sake don't forget to wash!"

The model was already on the street when a most important doubt occurred to him. Hurriedly he made his way back to the studio.

"Excuse me," he said to the painter, "which foot is it that you intend to paint?"

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

ROME AND THE SKYSCRAPER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The report that Premier Mussolini, of Italy, has approved plans for an 80-story skyscraper to be built in Rome has drawn much unfavorable comment. Architects feel that the massive splendor of the old Roman ruins and palaces would appear dwarfed by a monster building towering against the sky line.

Rome would have the distinction of possessing the greatest skyscraper of them all—a structure far more fearful and wonderful than New York's 58-story Woolworth building or its 50-story Metropolitan. But that Rome would be made more beautiful or really more impressive by its new possession is seriously questioned.

It is impossible that there should be any plan to introduce a number of such buildings into Rome and to make of it a second New York. The Italian capital has plenty of space in which to develop, and does not need to shoot up to the skies. The 80-story building is apparently proposed as an isolated spectacle, a tour de force—if, indeed, the report is correct as to the height.

The fact is, European cities do not take kindly to the American invention of the tall building. In Europe, a six or eight-story commercial structure, about 80 feet tall, is regarded as a skyscraper, and there are few of even this height. The tallest in Europe is in Vienna and is only 82 feet high. The limit for commercial buildings in London is 80 feet, in Rome it is 78 feet, and in Paris 65.

No doubt Europeans realize that the tall building might be a profitable venture for builders and a convenience for tenants. It enables a great many more business concerns to operate close together than low, spread out offices ever can. Nevertheless, even in crowded sections of big European cities zoning regulations strictly limit the height of buildings.

Paris was alarmed by the skyscraper menace last spring, when a few eight and nine-story apartment houses were planned, and when work was really started on one of them. The controversy raged again when London authorized the construction of a building that would tower a few feet above the 80-foot limit.

Many American architects are no more anxious for the skyscraper idea to emigrate to Europe than the Europeans are. Architects regard the tall building not merely as a modern development, but as an American development. The idea cannot be casually transplanted to other lands.

NEW YORK'S SKY LINE

The sky line of New York, seen from the harbor, is one of the finest features of the city. The tall buildings have varied and beautiful outlines, and their towers fairly melt into the clouds. There are enough of them so that they do not look like monstrous freaks. They are a fitting part of Manhattan as the result of a peculiar combination of circumstances.

The crowded narrow island needed to make every inch of ground count. Business could not spread outward; it had to spread upward. Improvements in making steel came just in time to make this possible. The first skeleton steel structure was erected in Indianapolis in the seventies. It was four stories high. Then New York and Chicago began to experiment with height. By 1888, Broadway had an 11-story building with only 21 feet of frontage. This "Tower Building" was derisively called a card house by some New Yorkers, but it stood firm until it was torn down in 1908.

The tall, thin type of building was a curiosity at first, but its usefulness was undeniable in a city like New York. Other builders went to work to show what they could do with steel frame construction. Office structures became higher and higher, until the Woolworth building set a formidable record with its 68 stories, rising 732 feet from the street to the top of its tower. A new height record in residential construction was recently set, when a 32-story bachelor hotel was built.

Most of the recent office buildings are not in the with those closest to the sky. The competition among builders to put up the tallest possible structures has about ceased. Americans are no longer easily overawed by mere height in a building. It has become apparent, too, that a large number of isolated close together, especially in a district where streets are narrow. Too much air and light would be shut off, and the congestion when workers poured in and out of the buildings would be intense.

BUILDING IN TERRACES

To prevent such conditions, zoning regulations have put restrictions on location of tall buildings and on their construction. These regulations are directly influencing the styles in skyscrapers. They are responsible, for instance, for the tower style of the newer tall buildings.

The lower floors of one of these giant buildings may cover a city square. Above the fifteenth or possibly the seventeenth floor the building becomes a little smaller in diameter, and at intervals the terraced effect is repeated until the top is a small tower. This style of architecture has proved far more effective than the tall squared off buildings. Architects say that the pleasing effect of a skyscraper fading away mysteriously into the sky is obtained as a result of the terraced plan.

When skyscrapers appeared on the horizon like an exotic breed of construction they were plain boxes with innumerable little windows, or else they were heavily ornamented in ways suited to lower buildings. Few of them won the unstinted admiration of the architects of the country. Elevators and skeleton steel construction—strictly modern developments—had brought into being this strange form of architecture which had never before existed in the history of the world. It seemed next to impossible to apply the traditional principles of construction to tall box-like cave dwellings so as to get artistic results.

But gradually the tall building has been coming into its own. Designers have studied its problems of mass, proportion and silhouette. They have learned to make the decorative detail smaller and simpler, so that the buildings may not seem too heavy or over-dressed. No one can look at some of the more recent plans or at the best of the completed buildings without realizing that the ugly duckling skyscrapers do not apply merely to buildings over 20 stories high. Only a few cities find use for super-tall structures in their business centers, but the skyscraper in the European sense is a landmark in every American city.

One architect finds that height limits between 100 and 200 feet obtain in most of our cities, and Boston with an 80-foot limit is about the most conservative city in this respect in the United States. The lower order of skyscrapers, from 10 to 20 stories tall, is becoming, in the hands of the artist, a work of art, perhaps the most typically American art form in existence.

Farmer Giles, canvassing for members for a raffle, asked one of his neighbors to enter.

"George," he said, "be you agoin' in for my raffle?"

"How much?" asked George.

"Five shillings," was the reply.

"Put me down," answered George. "I'll pay ye tomorrow."

Next day the two met again.

"Well," said George, "who won the prize?"

"I won the first prize," said the farmer.

"Who won the second?"

"My wife won the second; wasn't she lucky?"

"And who won the third?" queried George patiently.

"My darter; wasn't she lucky? By the way you haven't paid your five shilling yet."

"No," said George. "Wasn't I lucky?"

MADRID PRINCE IS ORDERED TO LEAVE BELGIUM

British Embassy Thwarts Ferdinand's Visit to England.

CONDUCT BLAMED

Bars go up After Paris Police Take Action.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—Prince Don Luis Ferdinand of Spain, mysteriously expelled from Paris last month, was requested today to leave Belgium immediately. His effort to comply with the request by sailing for England was thwarted when the British embassy refused to give him a passport.

Prince Ferdinand of Spain was summarily requested by the Paris prefect of police to leave France last month after a report that the crown prince of Spain had been attacked by robbers while on a tour of adventure, incognito, through the Montmartre and tenderloin of Paris.

The Parisian police later denied that the crown prince had been involved in the case, and Prince Ferdinand, who was reported to have been the young nobleman involved, was asked to leave the country. The police would not explain the order.

King Alfonso of Spain immediately ordered the return of royal decorations conferred on Prince Ferdinand and removed the title "Infante" from Ferdinand's name.

REMOVE SEWER, IS U. S. ORDER

Federal Engineers Claim Deposits Imperil Boat Landing.

The city of East Liverpool has been instructed to remove the sanitary sewer emptying into the Ohio river near the foot of Broadway, in an order from J. W. Arras, assistant engineer of the United States engineers' office at Pittsburgh, it developed Tuesday.

According to the communication, received by Mayor Brown, the wharf boat landing at the foot of Broadway is being endangered by deposits which are being dumped into the river from factories connected with the sewer.

The refuse is said to have formed a bar in the river "creating a serious and perhaps dangerous situation as affecting the wharfboat landing."

About a year ago the war department asked the city to immediately take steps to remedy the situation. When no reply was received the matter was referred to the United States attorney at Cleveland who also asked that the orders be followed out.

The government spent several thousand dollars a few years ago in dredging the wharfboat landing. The mayor will refer the communication to the board of health with the recommendation that the sewer be drained into the river at some other point above or below the wharfboat landing.

endency for Mrs. Patten, mentioned her two children.

"It seems to me that they should have been two pretty good reasons for the Patters keeping out of the liquor business," said Judge Peters.

Woman Had Masterful Mind.

Asked if Mrs. Patten had been coerced in any way the district attorney replied that he thought the wife had the more masterful mind of the two. The court then ruled that since the penalty for the offense the couple was charged with was eight months, the husband should serve six and the wife two.

"Fines evidently mean nothing to some people," said Judge Peters, in sentencing George Hansen and Frank Crocker to four months each. "They are fast forgetting we have a United States government and that its laws must be obeyed."

Crocker thanked the judge for his sentence, but Hansen collapsed in his chair. The arraignment of Mrs. Patten stirred several spectators to tears. She, herself, was weeping. She is about 40 years of age and her daughter is 17 and son, 15.

To Federal Officers Harold Kilton, George Parlin and Marshall Woodman gives credit for the roundup. According to the latter, liquor had long been sold openly on main highways, in stores and private homes. The Patters, he said, used their big touring car to visit Canada and bring back contraband.

face) Captain Roger Brunswick, French army officer, was to lay one of the many wreaths. Captain Emmanuel Lombard, assistant military attaché of the French Embassy, and representatives of the Disabled American War Veterans, Disabled Emergency Officers of the World War, veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, and Military Order of the World War, accompanied him.

Lazarus, of Baltimore, who officiated at the funeral services of the unknown soldier, will go to the tomb late this afternoon and lay a wreath in accordance with the custom they have established of visiting the tomb each anniversary. "Gold Star" War Mothers, The American Legionnaires of Washington, and numerous other organizations will also leave fresh wreaths at the marble sepulchre.

Woodrow Wilson, America's War President, will also be honored today with Memorial services at the National Cathedral, where he lies buried, and Memorial services were to be held around the peace cross in the Cathedral grounds.

New York Bows Head

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—New York bowed its head in silence for two minutes today in tribute to the world war dead.

During the two minutes, the city's "wreaths" were broadcast by all the metropolitan radio stations.

The stock exchange suspended its business during the interval and in many Wall Street offices there was observance of Armistice Day.

Special church services were held throughout the city. A municipal parade of 25,000 men was arranged for the afternoon, ending with exercises in Central Park.

International Memorial

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 11.—Enright and Gresham and Hay!

How America thrilled that day in November, 1917—just a year before the armistice—when the cables bore the proud tidings that American soldiers were "in;" that the first division of Pershing's A. E. F., after intensive training in the rear, had taken over its sector of the battlefield; that they had met and repulsed a German trench raid; that Privates Enright and Gresham and Hay, of the regular army, had been the first three Americans to die on the field of glory.

"Enright and Gresham and Hay!" The first to die to "make the world safe for democracy."

James Bethel Gresham believed to have been the first of the trio to make the supreme sacrifice, lived in Evansville.

Today his body, brought back from the battlefields of France, lies in the Little Locust Hill cemetery here, marked only by a milk bottle containing the faded writing shown here.

He died to make the world safe for democracy; but the note states it just a little differently, even if the intent be the same:

"He died (for) you and me!" But this mark of the grave of the first American who "went west" is not to continue. The American Legion post here has undertaken a national crusade to create an international war memorial at the grave, the central figure to be that of Private Gresham.

Each state in the Union, and all of the Allied nations alongside whose armies 2,000,000 potential Enright and Greshams and Hays aligned themselves for that all-powerful drive that ended the World War just one year later, will be asked to participate in the erection of the international monument by adding a memorial to the first man in its own troops to make the supreme sacrifice in Flanders Field and Arnonne Wood and in Verdun's slopes and amid the snows of the Vosges.

The milk bottle marker will be replaced—some day.

Centaph Service

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The sixth anniversary of the conclusion of the World War was observed, with the customary reverence and simplicity, throughout this country today.

As at last year's anniversary, the procedure of previous years was closely adhered to throughout the country. The only departure from the services as held in London last year is that today there was only one main remembrance service—that at the famous Cenotaph Memorial in Whitehall.

Whereas last year there were two, one at the Cenotaph and another at Westminster Abbey.

The Cenotaph service began shortly before 11 a. m. and was attended by King George and Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and other royal personages, and the whole of the Cabinet. Other privileged persons present included representatives of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force, while special accommodations was provided for contingents of ex-service men and wounded war veterans.

King Pays Tribute

Representative detachments of troops, airmen and naval men took up positions and formed a hollow square about 10-30 a. m., and the religious services commenced immediately on arrival of the royal family.

The religious service was conducted by the Bishop of London, and a picked choir from Westminster Abbey led the musical part of the service.

A few minutes before the great clock of the Palace of Westminster boomed out the hour the King deposited a wreath at the base of the Cenotaph. Following King George came the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family, with wreaths, while representatives of the forces also deposited wreaths. Wreaths on behalf of the Dominions and Colonies were also deposited.

On the stroke of 11 o'clock the assembled throngs observed silence for two minutes as a mark of respect for the dead, and then "Last Post" was sounded, followed by the singing of the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," to the accompaniment of massed bands.

The "Reveille" was sounded, the royal family withdrew, and the troops marched off.

Following the conclusion of the service the general public and deputations from war veterans' associations were allowed to place wreaths upon the cenotaph, while Westminster Abbey was also thrown open to allow the public to place wreaths upon the Unknown Soldier's grave.

The arrangements in other parts of the country are being left mainly to the Salvation Army and local war veterans' associations.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—With bowed heads and a minute of silence at 11 o'clock, France honored her war dead today. A London-like fog hung over the crowd as President Doumergue paid homage to the unknown soldier at his grave below the arch of triumph.

At 11 o'clock cannon boomed as a signal for silence, and when the minute's hush was over military music of many organizations broke out in gala song. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, marines, sailors and republicans guards marched in the parade down the campus elysees.

A deputy from the Paris chapter of the American legion, naval and military attaches and the American charge d'affaires represented the United States.

U. S. BUILDING BILL MOUNTS

New Homes, etc., in 1924 Cost Nearly Five Billions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The American building bill for 1924 is expected to exceed the enormous sum of $4,500,000,000, and the construction of homes accounts for about 40 per cent. Of that total, according to figures made public today by the Federal Reserve Board and the Department of Commerce.

It has been a boom year in the building industry. There still is a National housing problem. But the situation is the best it has been since the war, officials said.

Complete statistics for 1923 and the first ten months of 1924 show:

Total construction: 1923, $3,794,782,250; 1924, $4,794,064,000.

Residential construction: 1923, $1,607,426,000; 1924, $1,996,218,125.

Road building, it was estimated by the Federal Reserve Board will aggregate about $1,400,000,000 this year.

"The volume of construction in 1924, has given direct employment to more than 2,500,000 persons and has exercised a sustaining effect on the building material industry," the Federal Reserve Board said.

Two Men Hurt, 100 Flee, $200,000 Lost In Chicago Blaze

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Two firemen were injured, more than 100 persons were driven from their beds and $200,000 damage was caused here today by fire of incendiary origin which swept through the lumber yards of Zechman and Company.

The incendiaries first overpowered a watchman and left him bound and gagged a block from the plant.

"Most of our papers in this day and age reflect the sentiment of the community rather than create it. The business of the world is to grow a soul and our great need is for men to build a lofty and elevated soul. If we were like the Indian we would be contented still with a wigwam and a stream. But we are not like the red man; we demand fine homes, big mills, automobiles, railroads, tunnels and other modern inventions.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Another rush today to buy the low priced railroad, copper, oil and specialty stock featured the early trading in the stock market today and after slight hesitation at the start, prices resumed their forward movement in practically every division of the market.

The copper stocks moved upward in continuation of the rally which started near the close of yesterday's session and higher prices were recorded by Ray Consolidated, Kennecott, American Smelting, United States Smelting and other stocks in this group. Independent Steel stocks, under the leadership of Crucible, Republic and Bethlehem moved up from a fraction to two full points.

Low priced rails, like Katy and Seaboard Air Line, which showed the effects of profit taking near the end of Monday's session, were ready to resume the advance and Southern Pacific led the high priced stocks with a sharp advance to 112, a gain of two points.

American Can rose to a new high at 144 at the opening, capitalizing a heavy short interest in the stock, new rumors that the stock will be split on the basis of 5 to 1, with a two per cent dividend on the new stock, compared with the one per cent dividend which helped to stiffen the market for this speculative leader and a large volume of sales was made around 143.

There was no indication that the country-wide demand for stocks had yet been satisfied or that the pace of the market was ready to slow down. Large blocks of high priced stocks were sold without apparently affecting the technical position of the market and only in a few of the oil and industrial stocks did the market pause for profit taking.

Equipment had another session on reports that the railroad companies were contemplating large additions to their stocks of cars and engines, or for a number of which were placed this week. Baldwin, Pullman, New York Air Brake and Railway Steel Springs sold on from 1 to 2 points. Specialties like Savage Arms, Industrial Alcohol, Great Northern Ore, made new top prices, American Cotten and American Sugar were also strong and active.

Save for a two minute pause in observance of Armistice day, the swift pace of the market was maintained, with sales amounting to 565,000 shares in the first hour.

MADRID PRINCE IS ORDERED TO LEAVE BELGIUM

British Embassy Thwarts Ferdinand's Visit to England.

CONDUCT BLAMED

Bars go up After Paris Police Take Action.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—Prince Don Luis Ferdinand of Spain, mysteriously expelled from Paris last month, was requested today to leave Belgium immediately. His effort to comply with the request by sailing for England was thwarted when the British embassy refused to give him a passport.

Prince Ferdinand of Spain was summarily requested by the Paris prefect of police to leave France last month after a report that the crown prince of Spain had been attacked by robbers while on a tour of adventure, incognito, through the Montmartre and tenderloin of Paris.

The Parisian police later denied that the crown prince had been involved in the case, and Prince Ferdinand, who was reported to have been the young nobleman involved, was asked to leave the country. The police would not explain the order.

King Alfonso of Spain immediately ordered the return of royal decorations conferred on Prince Ferdinand and removed the title "Infante" from Ferdinand's name.

"Life Saver" Auto In City to Conduct Advertising Drive

An automobile, having a cylinder-shaped body, 15 feet in length and 51 inches in diameter, is attracting considerable attention in East Liverpool in an advertising campaign being conducted by the manufacturers of "Life Savers," the "mint candy with the role."

The truck, one of 60 operated by the company, arrived here Monday in charge of P. P. Hendrick. The shape, coloring and lettering of the body is a reproduction of the five-cent package of "Life Savers."

The car will remain here until Thursday.

President Coolidge Will Attend Chicago Live Stock Show

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—President Coolidge will leave Washington on December 3 to attend the National Live Stock Show at Chicago, it was announced at the White House today.

The president will attend Army-Navy football game in Baltimore on November 29, returning to the capital for the opening of congress on December 1.

Plans for the Chicago trip were still uncompleted today, but it was stated that the President and Mrs. Coolidge would leave for the west late in the afternoon on December 3 on a special train. This trip will be the longest that Mr. Coolidge has made away from Washington since he entered the White House more than a year ago.

REMOVE SEWER, IS U. S. ORDER

Federal Engineers Claim Deposits Imperil Boat Landing.

The city of East Liverpool has been instructed to remove the sanitary sewer emptying into the Ohio river near the foot of Broadway, in an order from J. W. Arras, assistant engineer of the United States engineers' office at Pittsburgh, it developed Tuesday.

According to the communication, received by Mayor Brown, the wharf boat landing at the foot of Broadway is being endangered by deposits which are being dumped into the river from factories connected with the sewer.

The refuse is said to have formed a bar in the river "creating a serious and perhaps dangerous situation as effecting the wharfboat landing."

About a year ago the war department asked the city to immediately take steps to remedy the situation. When no reply was received the matter was referred to the United States attorney at Cleveland who also asked that the orders be followed out.

The government spent several thousand dollars a few years ago in dredging the wharfboat landing. The mayor will refer the communication to the board of health with the recommendation that the sewer be drained into the river at some other point above or below the wharfboat landing.

lendency for Mrs. Patten, mentioned her two children.

"It seems to me that they should have been two pretty good reasons for the Patters keeping out of the liquor business," said Judge Peters.

Woman Had Masterful Mind.

Asked if Mrs. Patten had been coerced in any way the district attorney replied that he thought the wife had the more masterful mind of the two. The court then ruled that since the penalty for the offense the couple was charged with was eight months, the husband should serve six and the wife two.

"Fines evidently mean nothing to some people," said Judge Peters, in sentencing George Hansen and Frank Crocker to four months each. "They are fast forgetting we have a United States government and that its laws must be obeyed."

Crocker thanked the judge for his sentence, but Hansen collapsed in his chair. The arraignment of Mrs. Patten stirred several spectators to tears. She, herself, was weeping. She is about 40 years of age and her daughter is 17 and son, 15.

To Federal Officers Harold Kilton, George Parinton and Marshall Woodman give credit for the roundup. According to the latter, liquor had long been sold openly on main highways, in stores and private homes. The Patters, he said, used their big touring car to visit Canada and bring back contraband.

Louise Menardo, Chester mill worker, who was shot in the left breast during Sunday night's brawl, was reported to be recovering at the City hospital Tuesday. The other three men, hurt in the fight, are on the road to recovery at their homes.

Ginard Robert, a roomer at the Vital home, was taken to Lisbon Tuesday where he will be held for grand jury investigation on a charge of shooting with intent to kill.

face) Captain Roger Brunschwig, French army officer, was to lay one of the many wreaths. Captain Emmanuel Lombard, assistant military attaché of the French Embassy, and representatives of the Disabled American War Veterans, Disabled Emergency Officers of the World War, veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, and Military Order of the World War, accompanied him.

Col. John T. Axton, Chief of Chaplains, and Rabbi Morris S. Lazarus, of Baltimore, who officiated at the funeral services of the unknown soldier, will go to the tomb late this afternoon and lay a wreath in accordance with the custom they have established of visiting the tomb each anniversary. "Gold Star" War Mothers, The American Legionnaires of Washington, and numerous other organizations will also leave fresh wreaths at the marble sepulchre.

Woodrow Wilson, America's War President, will also be honored today with Memorial services at the National Cathedral, where he lies buried, and Memorial services to be held around the peace cross in the Cathedral grounds.

New York Bows Head

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—New York bowed its head in silence for two minutes today in tribute to the world war dead.

During the two minutes, the city's wheels of activity were halted while "taps" were broadcast by all the metropolitan radio stations.

The stock exchange suspended its business during the interval and in many Wall Street offices there was observance of Armistice Day.

Special church services were held through the city. A municipal parade of 25,000 was arranged for the afternoon, ending with exercises in Central Park.

International Memorial

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 11.—Enright and Gresham and Hay!

How America thrilled that day in November, 1917—just a year before the armistice—when the cables bore the proud tidings that American soldiers were "in;" that the first division of Pershing's A. E. F., after intensive training in the rear, had taken over its sector of the battlefield; that they had met and repulsed a German trench raid; that Privates Enright and Gresham and Hay, of the regular army, had been the first three Americans to die on the field of glory.

"Enright and Gresham and Hay!" The first to die to "make the world safe for democracy."

James Bethel Gresham believed to have been the first of the trio to make the supreme sacrifice, lived in Evansville.

Today his body, brought back from the battlefields of France, lies in the Little Locust Hill cemetery here, marked only by a milk bottle containing the faded writing shown here.

He died to make the world safe for democracy; but the note states it just a little differently, even if the intent be the same:

"He died (for) you and me!"

But this neglect of the grave of the first American who "went west" is not to continue. The American Legion post here has undertaken a national crusade to create an international war memorial at the grave, the central figure to be that of Private Gresham.

Each state in the Union, and all of the Allied nations alongside whose armies 2,000,000 potential Enright and Greshams and Hays aligned themselves for that all powerful drive that ended the World War just one year later, will be asked to participate in the erection of the international monument by adding a memorial to the first man in its own troops to make the supreme sacrifice in Flanders Field and Argonne Wood and on Verdun's slopes and amid the snows of the Vosges.

The milk bottle marker will be replaced—some day.

Centaph Service

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The sixth anniversary of the conclusion of the World War was observed, with the customary reverence and simplicity, throughout this country today.

As at last year's anniversary, the procedure of previous years was closely adhered to throughout the country. The only departure from the services as held in London last year is that today there was only one main remembrance service—that at the famous Cenotaph Memorial in Whitehall, whereas last year there were two, one at the Cenotaph and another at Westminster Abbey.

The Cenotaph service began shortly before 11 a. m. and was attended by King George and Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and other royal personages, and the whole of the Cabinet. Other privileged persons included representatives of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force, while special accommodations was provided for contingents of ex-service men and wounded war veterans.

King Pays Tribute.

Representative detachments of troops, airmen and naval men took up positions and formed a hollow square about 10:30 a. m., and the religious services commenced immediately on arrival of the royal family.

The religious service was conducted by the Bishop of Westminster, who led the musical part of the service.

A few minutes before the great clock of the Palace of Westminster boomed out the hour the King deposited ated a wreath at the base of the Cenotaph. Following King George came the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family, with wreaths, while representatives of the forces also deposited wreaths. Wreaths on behalf of the Dominions and Colonies were also deposited.

On the stroke of 11 o'clock the assembled throngs observed silence for two minutes as a mark of respect for the dead, and then "Last Post" was sounded, followed by the singing of the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," to the accompaniment of massed bands.

The "Reveille" was sounded, the royal family withdrew, and the troops marched off.

Following the conclusion of the service the general public and deputations from war veterans' associations were allowed to place wreaths upon the Cenotaph, while Westminster Abbey was also thrown open to allow the public to place wreaths upon the Unknown Soldier's grave.

The arrangements in other parts of the country are being left mainly to the Salvation Army and local war veterans' associations.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—With bowed heads and a minute of silence at 11 o'clock, France honored her war dead today.

A London-like fog hung over the crowd as President Doumergue paid homage to the unknown soldier at his grave below the arch of triumph.

At 11 o'clock cannon boomed as a signal for silence, and when the minute's hush was over military music of many organizations broke out in gala song. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, marines, sailors and republican guards marched in the parade down the campus elysees.

A deputy from the Paris chapter of the American legion, naval and military attaches and the American charge d'affaires represented the United States.

U. S. BUILDING BILL MOUNTS

New Homes, etc., in 1924 Cost Nearly Five Billions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The American building bill for 1924 is expected to exceed the enormous sum of $4,500,000,000, and the construction of homes accounts for about 40 per cent. Of that total, according to figures made public today by the Federal Reserve Board and the Department of Commerce.

It has been a boom year in the building industry. There still is a national housing problem. But the situation is the best it has been since the war, officials said.

Complete statistics for 1923 and the first ten months of 1924 show:

Total construction: 1923, $3,794,789,250; 1924, $4,794,064,000.

Residential construction: 1923, $1,607,436,000; 1924, $1,906,218,125.

Road building, it was estimated by the Federal Reserve Board will aggregate about $1,100,000,000 this year.

"The volume of construction in 1924, has given direct employment to more than 2,500,000 persons and has exercised a sustaining effect on the building material industry," the Federal Reserve Board said.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Two firemen were injured, more than 100 persons were driven from their beds and $200,000 damage was caused here today by fire of incendiary origin which swept through the lumber yards of Zechman and Company.

The incendiaries first overpowered a watchman and left him bound and gagged a block from the plant.

The business of the world is to grow a soul and our great need is for men to build a lofty and elevated soul. If we were like the Indian we would be contented still with a wigwam and a stream. But we are not like the red man; we demand fine homes, big mills, automobiles, railroads, tunnels and other modern inventions.

NEW 1925 AUTO LICENSES READY

C. E. Hiner, state road commissioner, has announced that auto license plates for 1925 are now ready for distribution. Plates must be displayed where they can be plainly seen and auto owners placing them behind jumpers will be subject to arrest.

During the past few years there has been a delay in issuing license plates with the result that owners were given an extension of several months after the first of the year. Every effort will be made to have all plates in the hands of applicants before the end of December and car owners are urged against delay in securing tags.

Celebrations commemorating the signing of the peace pact were held in several other places in the county.

DIPHTHERIA FIGHT IS BEING WAGED

More than 450 persons in Hancock county, including 189 in Chester, have been injected with toxin-antitoxin which is believed to prevent diphtheria. The majority, for most part, have been school children.

Parents of children from one year up who desire to have this treatment are requested to communicate with Superintendent of Schools Al Rabenstein or Dr. C. W. Many, county health director, New Cumberland. Several school teachers of the county are listed among those that have been inoculated.

Roller skating tonight at Rock Springs Park.

Finds Kellogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation determined this man's health. Kellogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen:

"After eating Kellogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation."

"I deem it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others."

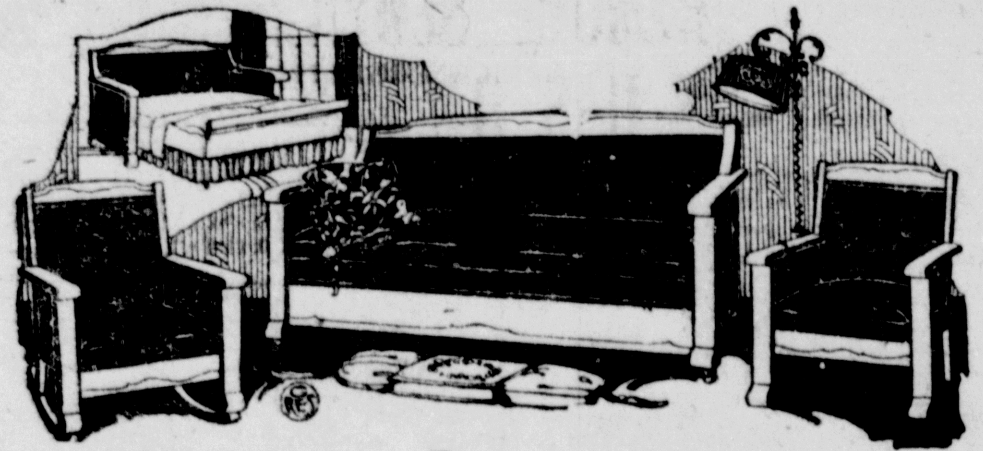

(The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Kellogg's Bran relieves mild and chronic constipation because it is ALL bran. It brings sure results. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine in nature's own way. Don't experiment. Only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring permanent relief—or your grocer returns your money. You should eat two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Judith of Blue Lake Ranch

By JACKSON GREGORY.

"That's all now," she told him, her eyes soft upon him. "Just one kiss for each slice of bacon, Mr. Lee. But—I'm so hungry!"

For a little there was nothing to do but for Judith to rest and get some of her strength back. Lee made of his coat and vest a seat for her against a rock, sat at her side, his arm about her, made her lean against him and just be happy. Not yet would he let her tell him of the horrors through which she had gone. And he saw no need of telling her anything immediately of conditions as he had left them at the ranch. Time enough for that when she was stronger, when they were near Blue Lake.

Green, the farthest, came at last up the mountain. He noted the isolated tree, nodded at it approvingly, made a brief tour around the charred circle, extinguishing a burning brand here and there.

"What sort of a fool would want to climb way up here to start a fire, anyway?" he grumbled.

Then, unexpectedly, he came upon the happiest-looking man he had ever seen, with his arms about an amazingly pretty girl. Not just the sort of thing a lone forest ranger counts upon stumbling upon on the top of a mountain. Green stared in bewilderment, Bud Lee turning a flaming red. Judith smiled.

"Good morning, stranger," said Lee. "Fine day, isn't it?"

Judith laughed. Green continued to stare. Lee went a trifle redder.

"If you two folks just started that fire for fun," grunted Green finally, "why, then, all I've got to say is you've got a blamed queer idea of fun. Here I've been busting myself wide open to get to it."

"Haven't got a flask of brandy on you, have you?" asked Lee.

"Yes, I have. And what's more, I'm going to take a shot at it right now. If nobody asks you, I need it!"

Now, Lee heard for the first time something of Judith's adventure. For, recognizing the ranger in Green, she told him swiftly why she had started the fire, of her trouble with Quinlon, of the cave where Quinlon had attacked her and of Mad Ruth. Green's eyes lighted with interest. He swept off his hat and came forward, suddenly apologetic and very human, proffering his brandy, insisting with Lee upon her taking a sip of it.

Yes, he knew Mad Ruth, he knew where her cabin was. He could find the cave from Judith's description. Also, he knew of Quinlon and would be delighted to break a record getting back to his station and to White Rock. White Rock was in the next county, but so, for that matter, was the cave. He'd get the sheriff and would lose no time cornering Quinlon if the man had not already slipped away.

"I don't know you two real well," said Green, with a quick smile at the end, "but if you don't mind, pardner," and he put out his hand to Lee, "I'd like to congratulate you! I don't know a man that's as lucky this morning as you are!"

"Thank you," laughed Judith. She rose and shook hands, too. "We're at Blue Lake ranch for the present. Come and see us."

"Then you're Miss Sanford?" said Green. He laughed. "I've heard of you more than once, Green's my name."

"Lee's mine," offered Lee.

"Bud Lee, eh? Oh, you two will do! So long, friends. I'm off to look up Quinlon."

And, swinging his ax blithely, Green took his departure.

"There are other things in the world besides just cliffs to stare at," said Judith. "And I would like a bath and a change of clothes and a chance to brush my hair. And the bacon doesn't taste so good as it did and I want an apple and a glass of milk."

So at last they left the mountain top and made their slow way down.

As they went Lee told her something of what had happened at the ranch, how Carson would hold off the buyers, how Tommy Burditt was assuming charge of Pollock Hampton.

And when they came near enough to Burditt's and Hampton's hiding place, Lee fired a rifle several times to get Burditt's attention. Finally they saw the boy, standing against the sky upon a big gesture, chiefly from the fact that Judith was there, Burditt understood and freed Hampton, the two of them coming swiftly down to Judith and Lee.

Hampton's face was hot with the anger which had grown overnight. He came on stiffly, chafing his wrists.

"These two fools," he snapped to Judith, "have made an awful mess of things. They've queered the deal with Doan, Rockwell & Haight, they've made themselves liable to prosecution for holding me against my will, they've—"

"Wait a minute, Pollock," said Judith quietly. "It's you who has made a mistake."

Briefly, she told him what had happened. As word after word of her account fell upon Hampton's ears, his eyes widened, the stiffness of his bearing fell away, the glint of anger went out of his eyes, a look of wonder came into them. And when she had finished, Hampton did not hesitate. He turned quickly and put of his two hands, one to Lee, one to Burditt.

"I was a chump, same as usual," he grunted. "Forget it if you can. I can't."

They went on more wittily now, the four of them together, Judith insisting that that last sip of brandy had put new life into her. In a little while, seeing that Judith did in fact have herself in hand, Bud Lee, with a hidden pressure of her hand, left them, hurrying on ahead, trying to reach Carson or some of the men in Pocket valley and to get horses.

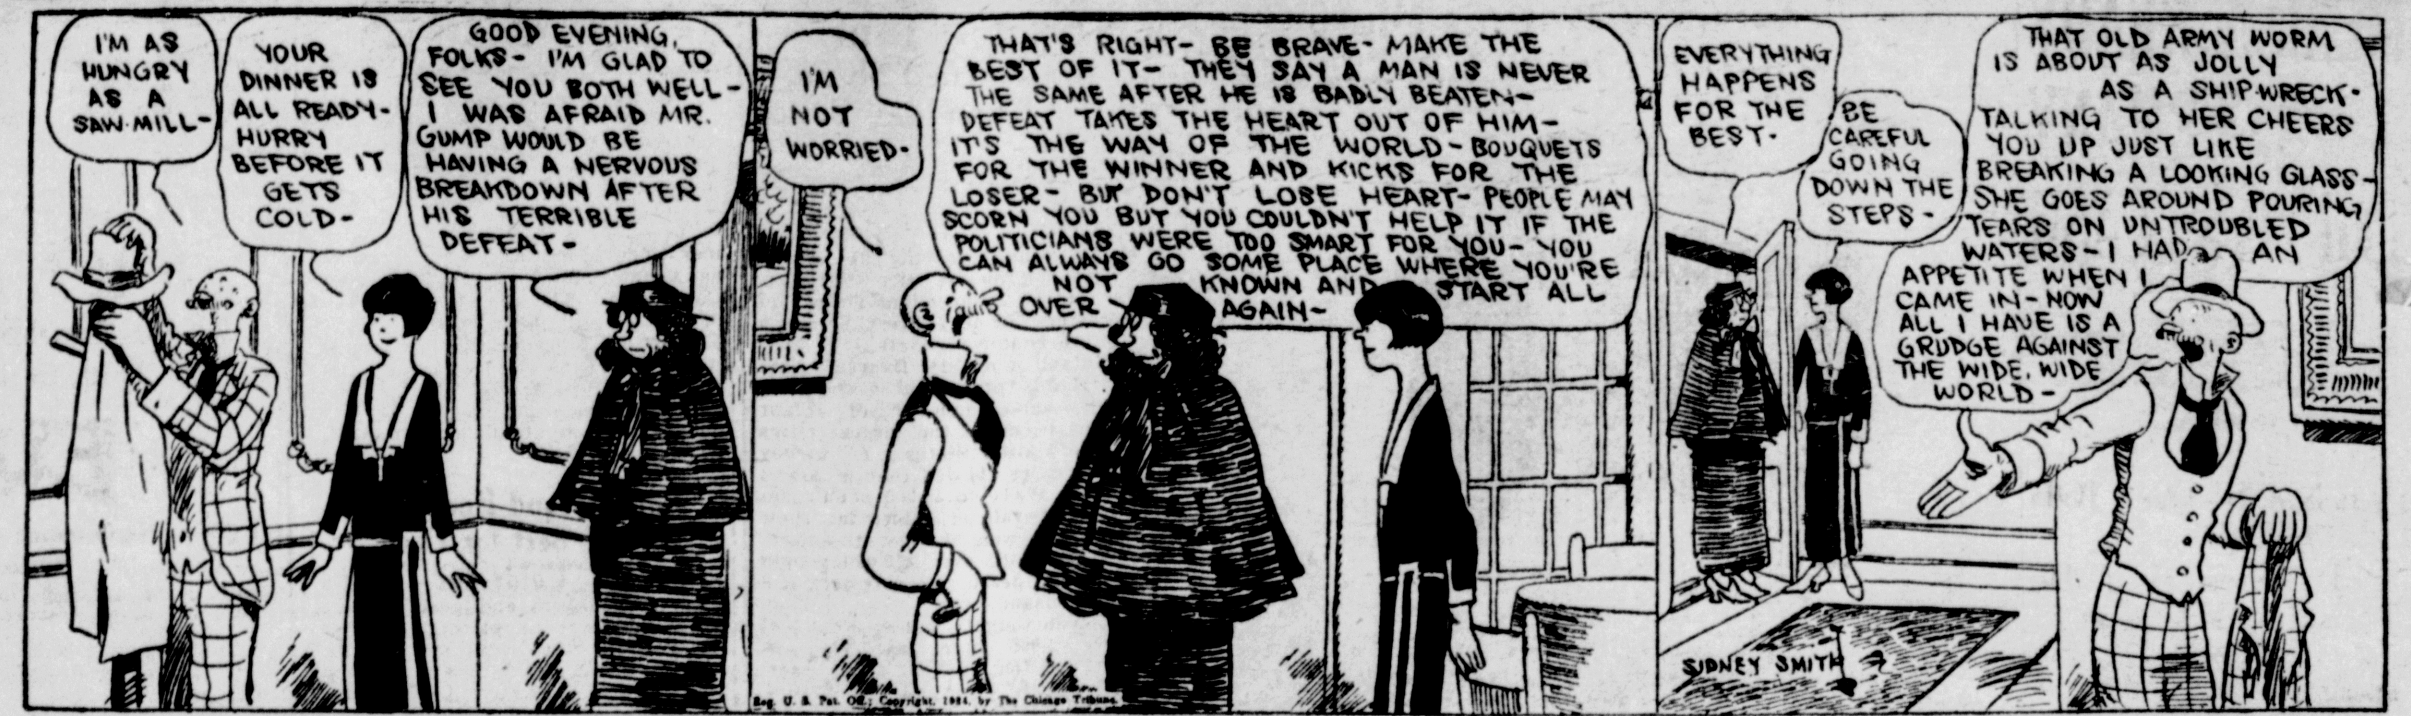

As he drew near the ranch Lee had smoke rising from the north ridge. Again he could turn his thoughts a little to what lay in front of him, wondering what luck Carson had had in his double task of fighting fire and holding off the buyers.

Most Beautiful of Parisian Opera Stars Is Finally Lured to U. S.

After several unsuccessful attempts, American concert managers have finally induced Mlle. Marthe Chenal, most beautiful as well as the most famous of the younger Parisian opera stars, to come to this country for a time. She will arrive shortly.

Information in the hands of the United States government.

The vanguard of trusted agents of American bankers and investment brokers has already invaded Germany, to study the economic "comeback" anticipated following the acceptance of the Dawes report of the successful flotation of the $200,000,000 loan.

The United States, having subscribed $110,000,000 of the loan, will be Germany's biggest customer as the result of the industrial development expected to come, according to government economists. Great Britain, with her $70,000,000 subscription, stands second as a prospective beneficiary of rehabilitated German commerce.

The $110,000,000 subscribed by American bankers to put German currency on a gold exchange basis and to establish basic credits abroad, is the forerunner of possible hundreds of millions that will flow into the great industries of that nation as soon as her recovery becomes apparent, federal experts asserted.

"Germany is certain to become an insistent market for American capital in years to come," said a statement issued by one government department. "Germany must have credit to obtain the vast supply of raw materials to keep her industries going."

The greater portion of the credit granted from the United States will go to German firms now doing business with this country, either as importers or exporters. Already the potash fertilizer interest, dye and drug producers, both of which export tremendous quantities of goods to the United States, and a string of German cotton mills which consume a large quantity of American cotton, have been financed extensively in this country, it was learned.

The government regards the first indications from Germany are favorable.

During the past year the new rentenmark has suffered little fluctua-

Babies Live Better In Crowded Slums Than in Villages

CHICAGO, Ill.—Large cities with their overcrowded tenements and insanitary slums are more healthful for young babies than small towns, according to Frank E. Hand, Supreme Vice-Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, in an address before a welfare conference here.

"Infant mortality figures," said Mr. Hand, "prove that a comparatively small number of infant deaths occur in the largest cities in the United States. A survey of 534 cities showed that in towns of from 10,000 to 25,000 population the death rate of babies in their first year was 51.6 per thousand. In cities with over 250,000 people the infant death rate was only 75.9 per thousand."

"Seventy-eight babies out of every 1,000 born last year in America died in their first year. The Pacific Coast has the lowest infant mortality rate. Washington headed the list with 51 deaths per thousand. Oregon was second with 53 and California had an average of 66."

"The United States spends more money annually to protect cattle than it does to prevent infant mortality."

The German budget, is fairly well balanced, with a small surplus in the past year. The surplus was employed to take off the market an outstanding emergency bond issue, cutting down the Government's obligation to the extent.

Officials said that they have reason to believe Germany will continue to balance her budget and strive for surpluses to meet outstanding emergency obligations.

The export of $110,000,000 capital from the United States to Germany should not only make Germany the market for heavy additional loans, but should stimulate American foreign trade, experts predicted, it was pointed out that the actual gold does not leave the United States, but is kept here by the German "gold bank of issue," to establish credit.

The average business man in the United States and in Germany has not realized to what extent German credit has been impaired, according to governmental information.

The rehabilitation of Germany will be directed by S. Parker Gilbert, former Under Secretary of the Treasury, as Agent-General of the Reparations Commission. The German "gold bank of issue" will have charge of the $200,000,000 loan obtained for that nation. This bank does not have direct contact with German industry, but maintains the same relation to it as does the Federal Reserve Bank to American industry.

Pine Tar and Honey Still Best for Chest Colds and Coughs

Our mothers and grandmothers would never be without pine tar syrup in the house for coughs, chest colds, etc. This was many years ago, but modern medicine has never been able to improve on this time-tested remedy. Doctors say the pine tar is hard to beat for quickly loosening and removing the phlegm and congestion that are the actual cause of the cough. At the same time pine tar and honey soothe and heal all irritation and soreness.

The kind that has been used with never-failing success in thousands of families for years is that known as Dr. Jell's Pine-Tar Honey. This is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. It contains absolutely no opiates, narcotics or harmful drugs, so can be given to young children—fine for spasmodic croup. It tastes good, too. If you want the best, a medicine that often stops the severest cough overnight, be sure you get Dr. Jell's Pine-Tar Honey. It costs only 50c at any good druggist's.

Most Beautiful of Parisian Opera Stars Is Finally Lured to U. S.

After several unsuccessful attempts, American concert managers have finally induced Mlle. Marthe Chenal, most beautiful as well as the most famous of the younger Parisian opera stars, to come to this country for a time. She will arrive shortly.

Information in the hands of the United States government. The vanguard of trusted agents of American bankers and investment brokers has already invaded Germany, to study the economic "comeback" anticipated following the acceptance of the Dawes report of the successful flotation of the $200,000,000 loan.

The United States, having subscribed $110,000,000 of the loan, will be Germany's biggest customer as the result of the industrial development expected to come, according to government economists. Great Britain, with her $70,000,000 subscription, stands second as a prospective beneficiary of rehabilitated German commerce.

The $110,000,000 subscribed by American bankers to put German currency on a gold exchange basis and to establish basic credits abroad, is the forerunner of possible hundreds of millions that will flow into the great industries of that nation as soon as her recovery becomes apparent, federal experts asserted.

"Germany is certain to become an insistent market for American capital in years to come," said a statement issued by one government department. "Germany must have credit to obtain the vast supply of raw materials to keep her industries going."

The greater portion of the credit granted from the United States will go to German firms now doing business with this country, either as importers or exporters. Already the potash fertilizer interest, dye and drug producers, both of which export tremendous quantities of goods to the United States, and a string of German cotton mills which consume a large quantity of American cotton, have been financed extensively in this country, it was learned.

The government regards the first indications from Germany are favorable. During the past year the new rentenmark has suffered little fluctua-

Babies Live Better In Crowded Slums Than in Villages

CHICAGO, Ill.—Large cities with their overcrowded tenements and insanitary slums are more healthful for young babies than small towns, according to Frank E. Hand, Supreme Vice-Crier Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, in an address before a welfare conference here.

"Infant mortality figures," said Mr. Hand, "prove that a comparatively small number of infant deaths occur in the largest cities in the United States. A survey of 534 cities showed that in towns of from 10,000 to 25,000 population the death rate of babies in their first year was 81.6 per thousand. In cities with over 250,000 people the infant death rate was only 75.9 per thousand."

"Seventy-eight babies out of every 1,000 born last year in America died in their first year. The Pacific Coast has the lowest infant mortality rate. Washington headed the list with 51 deaths per thousand. Oregon was second with 53 and California had an average of 66."

"The United States spends more money annually to protect cattle than it does to prevent infant mortality."

The German budget, is fairly well balanced, with a small surplus in the past year. The surplus was employed to take off the market an outstanding emergency bond issue, cutting down the Government's obligation to the text.

Officials said that they have reason to believe Germany will continue to balance her budget and strive for surpluses to meet outstanding emergency obligations.

The export of $110,000,000 capital from the United States to Germany should not only make Germany the market for heavy additional loans, but should stimulate American foreign trade, experts predicted, it was

Judith of Blue Lake Ranch

By JACKSON GREGORY.

"That's all now," she told him, her eyes soft upon him. "Just one kiss for each slice of bacon, Mr. Lee. But—I'm so hungry!"

For a little there was nothing to do but for Judith to rest and get some of her strength back. Lee made of his coat and vest a seat for her against a rock, sat at her side, his arm about her, made her lean against him and just be happy. Not yet would he let her tell him of the horrors through which she had gone. And he saw no need of telling her anything immediately of conditions as he had left them at the ranch. Time enough for that when she was stronger, when they were near Blue Lake.

Green, the farthest, came at last up the mountain. He noted the isolated tree, nodded at it approvingly, made a brief tour around the charred circle, extinguishing a burning brand here and there.

"What sort of a fool would want to climb way up here to start a fire, anyway?" he grumbled.

Then, unexpectedly, he came upon the happiest-looking man he had ever seen, with his arms about an amazingly pretty girl. Not just the sort of thing a lone forest ranger counts upon stumbling upon on the top of a mountain. Green stared in bewilderment, Bud Lee turning a flaming red. Judith smiled.

"Good morning, stranger," said Lee. "Fine day, isn't it?"

Judith laughed. Green continued to stare. Lee went a trifle redder.

"If you two folks just started that fire for fun," grunted Green finally, "why, then, all I've got to say is you've got a blamed queer idea of fun. Here I've been busting myself wide open to get to it."

"Haven't got a flask of brandy on you, have you?" asked Lee.

"Yes, I have. And what's more, I'm going to take a shot at it right now. If nobody asks you, I need it!"

Now, Lee heard for the first time something of Judith's adventure. For, recognizing the ranger in Green, she told him swiftly why she had started the fire, of her trouble with Quinlon, of the cave where Quinlon had attacked her and of Mad Ruth. Green's eyes lighted with interest. He swept off his hat and came forward, suddenly apologetic and very human, proffering his brandy, insisting with Lee upon her taking a sip of it.

Yes, he knew Mad Ruth, he knew where her cabin was. He could find the cave from Judith's description. Also, he knew of Quinlon and would be delighted to break a record getting back to his station and to White Rock. White Rock was in the next county, but so, for that matter, was the cave. He'd get the sheriff and would lose no time cornering Quinlon if the man had not already slipped away.

"I don't know you two real well," said Green, with a quick smile at the end, "but if you don't mind, pardner," and he put out his hand to Lee, "I'd like to congratulate you! I don't know a man that's as lucky this morning as you are!"

"Thank you," laughed Judith. She rose and shook hands, too. "We're at Blue Lake ranch for the present. Come and see us."

"Then you're Miss Sanford?" said Green. He laughed. "I've heard of you more than once, Green's my name."

"Lee's mine," offered Lee.

"Bud Lee, eh? Oh, you two will do! So long, friends. I'm off to look up Quinlon."

And, swinging his ax blithely, Green took his departure.

"There are other things in the world besides just cliffs to stare at," said Judith. "And I would like a bath and a change of clothes and a chance to brush my hair. And the bacon doesn't taste so good as it did and I want an apple and a glass of milk."

So at last they left the mountain top and made their slow way down.

As they went Lee told her something of what had happened at the ranch, how Carson would hold off the buyers, how Tommy Burkitt was assuming charge of Pollock Hampton.

And when they came near enough to Burkitt's and Hampton's hiding place, Lee fired a rifle several times to get Burkitt's attention. Finally they saw the boy, standing against the sky upon a big gesture, chiefly from the fact that Judith was there, Burkitt understood and freed Hampton, the two of them coming swiftly down to Judith and Lee.

Hampton's face was hot with the anger which had grown overnight. He came on stiffly, chafing his wrists.

"These two fools," he snapped to Judith, "have made an awful mess of things. They've queered the deal with Doan, Rockwell & Haight, they've made themselves liable to prosecution for holding me against my will, they've—"

"Wait a minute, Pollock," said Judith quietly. "It's you who has made a mistake."

Briefly, she told him what had happened. As word after word of her account fell upon Hampton's ears, his eyes widened, the stiffness of his bearing fell away, the glint of anger went out of his eyes, a look of wonder came into them. And when she had finished, Hampton did not hesitate. He turned quickly and put of his two hands, one to Lee, one to Burkitt.

"I was a chump, same as usual," he grunted. "Forget it if you can. I can't."

They went on more wittily now, the four of them together, Judith insisting that that last sip of brandy had put new life into her. In a little while, seeing that Judith did in fact have herself in hand, Bud Lee, with a hidden pressure of her hand, left them, hurrying on ahead, trying to reach Carson or some of the men in Pocket valley and to get horses.

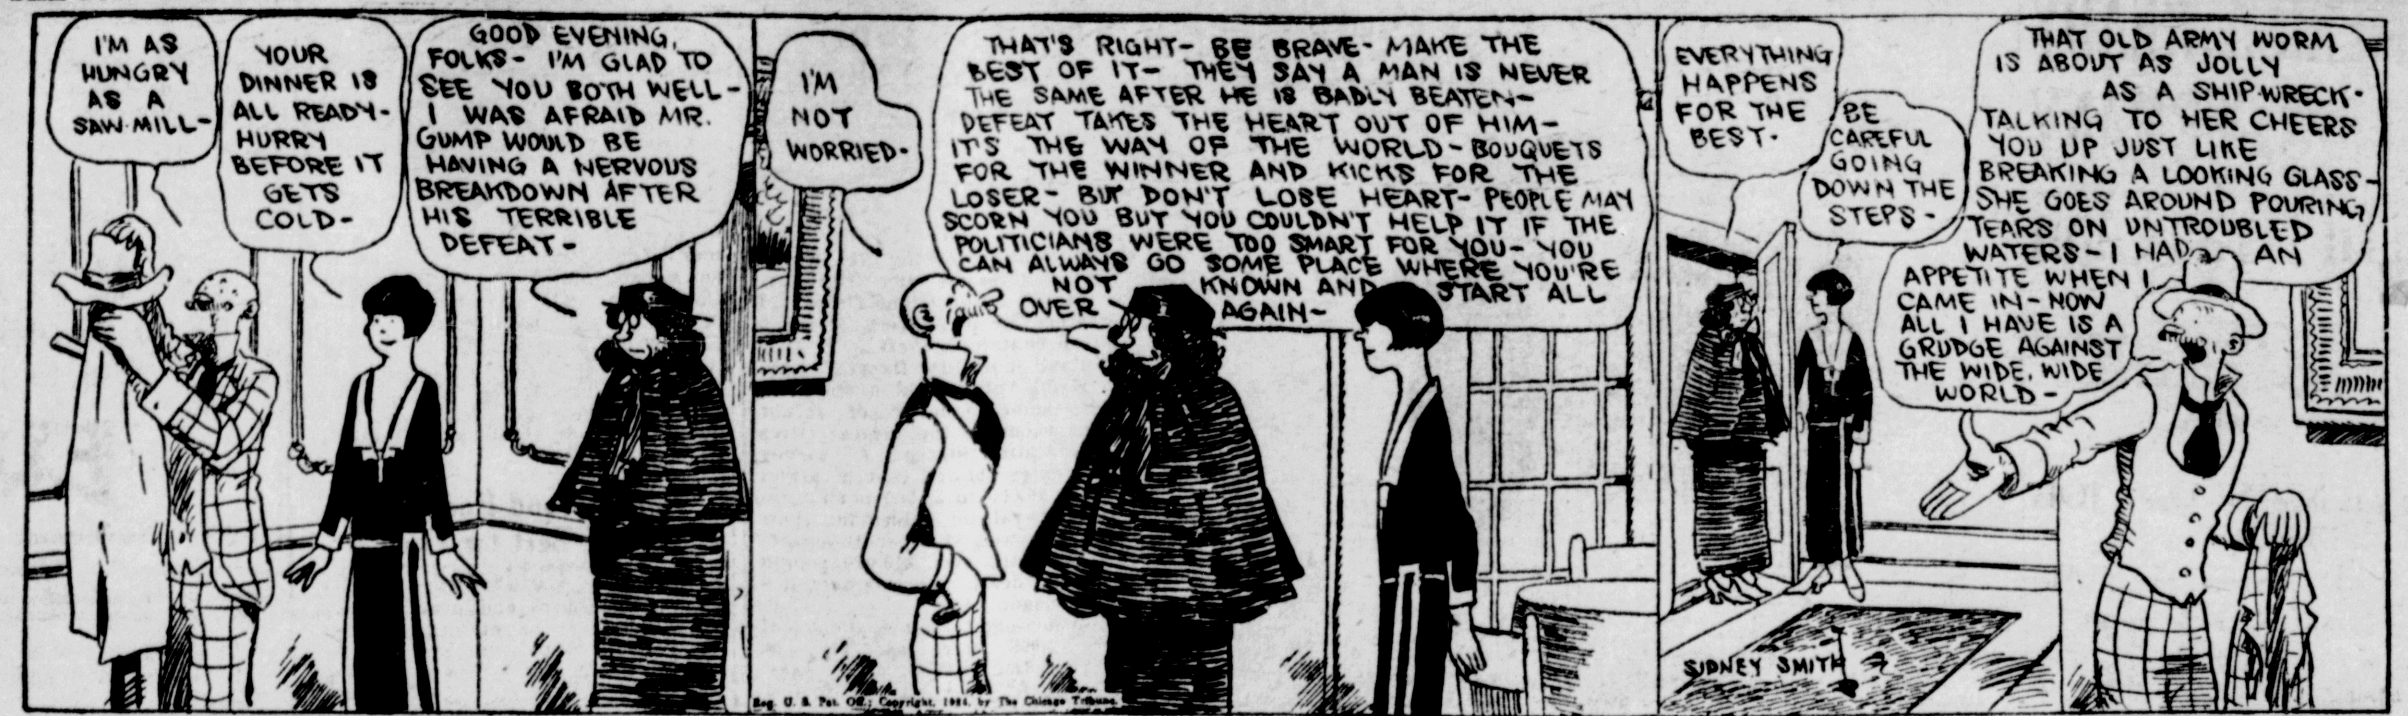

As he drew near the ranch Lee had smoke rising from the north ridge. Again he could turn his thoughts a little to what lay in front of him, wondering what luck Carson had had in his double task of fighting fire and holding off the buyers.

pointed out that the actual gold does not leave the United States, but is kept here by the German "gold bank of issue," to establish credit.

The average business man in the United States and in Germany has not realized to what extent German credit has been impaired, according to governmental information.

The rehabilitation of Germany will be directed by S. Parker Gilbert, former Under Secretary of the Treasury, as Agent-General of the Reparations Commission. The German "gold bank of issue" will have charge of the $200,000,000 loan obtained for that nation. This bank does not have direct contact with German industry, but maintains the same relation to it as does the Federal Reserve Bank to American industry.

Pine Tar and Honey Still Best for Chest Colds and Coughs

Our mothers and grandmothers would never be without pine tar syrup in the house for coughs, chest colds, etc. This was many years ago, but modern medicine has never been able to improve on this time-tested remedy. Doctors say the pine tar is hard to beat for quickly loosening and removing the phlegm and congestion that are the actual cause of the cough. At the same time pine tar and honey soothe and heal all irritation and soreness.

The kind that has been used with never-failing success in thousands of families for years is that known as Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in spasmodic cough. It tastes good, too. If you want the best, a medicine that often stops the severest cough overnight, be sure you get Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. It costs only 50c at any good druggist's.

Most Beautiful of Parisian Opera Stars Is Finally Lured to U. S.

After several unsuccessful attempts, American concert managers have finally induced Mlle. Marthe Chenal, most beautiful as well as the most famous of the younger Parisian opera stars, to come to this country for a time. She will arrive shortly.

Information in the hands of the United States government.

The vanguard of trusted agents of American bankers and investment brokers has already invaded Germany, to study the economic "comeback" anticipated following the acceptance of the Dawes report of the successful flotation of the $200,000,000 loan.

The United States, having subscribed $110,000,000 of the loan, will be Germany's biggest customer as the result of the industrial development expected to come, according to government economists. Great Britain, with her $70,000,000 subscription, stands second as a prospective beneficiary of rehabilitated German commerce.

The $110,000,000 subscribed by American bankers to put German currency on a gold exchange basis and to establish basic credits abroad, is the forerunner of possible hundreds of millions that will flow into the great industries of that nation as soon as her recovery becomes apparent, federal experts asserted.

"Germany is certain to become an insistent market for American capital in years to come," said a statement issued by one government department. "Germany must have credit to obtain the vast supply of raw materials to keep her industries going."

The greater portion of the credit granted from the United States will go to German firms now doing business with this country, either as importers or exporters. Already the potash fertilizer interest, dye and drug producers, both of which export tremendous quantities of goods to the United States, and a string of German cotton mills which consume a large quantity of American cotton, have been financed extensively in this country, it was learned.

The government regards the first indications from Germany are favorable.

Babies Live Better In Crowded Slums Than in Villages

CHICAGO, Ill.—Large cities with their overcrowded tenements and insanitary slums are more healthful for young babies than small towns, according to Frank E. Hand, Supreme Vice-Crier Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, in an address before a welfare conference here.

"Infant mortality figures," said Mr. Hand, "prove that a comparatively small number of infant deaths occur in the largest cities in the United States. A survey of 534 cities showed that in towns of from 10,000 to 25,000 population the death rate of babies in their first year was 81.6 per thousand. In cities with over 250,000 people the infant death rate was only 75.9 per thousand."

"Seventy-eight babies out of every 1,000 born last year in America died in their first year. The Pacific Coast has the lowest infant mortality rate. Washington headed the list with 51 deaths per thousand, Oregon was second with 53 and California had an average of 66."

"The United States spends more money annually to protect cattle than it does to prevent infant mortality."

tion. The German budget, is fairly well balanced, with a small surplus in the past year. The surplus was employed to take off the market an outstanding emergency bond issue, cutting down the Government's obligation to the extent.

Officials said that they have reason to believe Germany will continue to balance her budget and strive for surpluses to meet outstanding emergency obligations.

The export of $110,000,000 capital from the United States to Germany should not only make Germany the market for heavy additional loans, but should stimulate American foreign trade, experts predicted, it was

The Strain Of Traffic Driving

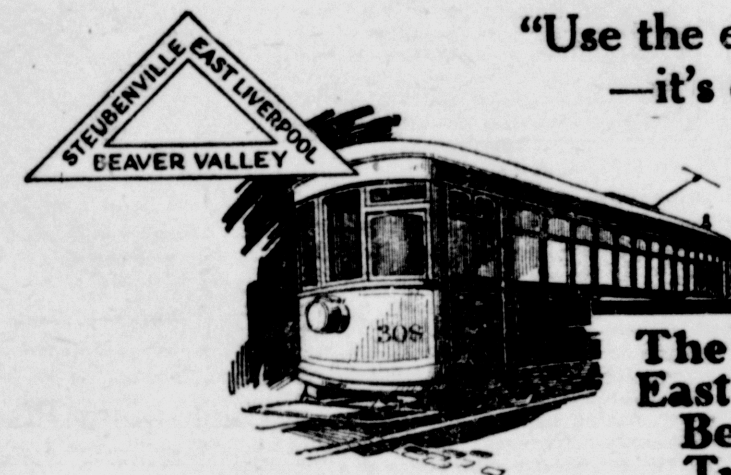

Regardless of how careful a driver you may be, there still remains the reckless driver who endangers your car if not the life of yourself or loved ones.

The beginner in the driving game, the fellow who tries to beat the traffic signal, the man who tries to gain seconds by sneaking ahead of you, and the "corner cutter," all are menaces to sane and safe driving.

Driving in traffic today is a continual strain—always on the guard to prevent a serious accident. It's easy to escape this tiresome worry. Use your auto by all means, it's just right for week-end trips—for a quick run into the country—for an evening picnic; but for city driving, to the store, or office, or shop, or theater—take the street car.

Here you can ride safely and comfortably. No delay, no worry about parking when you get there. Your own car is safe at home waiting for the evening ride.

GULBRANSEN Demonstration Week

WE HAVE a surprise for you. We have an instrument played by music roll and pedals, on which you can register your personal touch on the keys, just as you would in hand-playing. We have an instrument on which you can accent the melody and subdue the accompaniment.

Or you can use any ordinary song roll and play the accompaniment only, without playing the melody notes at all! You can play any regular player roll in seven different keys! The instrument that will do these things is the Gulbransen Registering Piano, of which we are making a special demonstration this week.

Come in—we want to show you this latest achievement in the music world—the famous Gulbransen about which you have read in the Saturday Evening Post, The Literary Digest and the American Magazine. Don't hesitate—come in today!

Try Gulbransen peddling. So effortless that a baby pushing down the pedals gave the idea for the Gulbransen Trade mark.

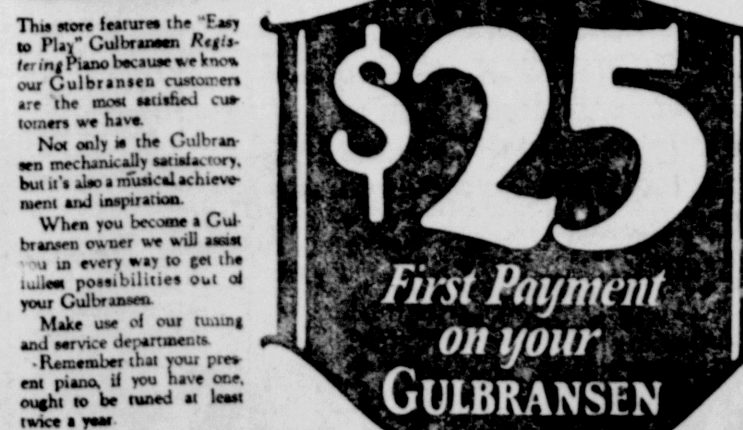

Four Gulbransen Instruction rolls furnished with every Gulbransen. These are exclusive with Gulbransen—highly interesting and simple to master. They teach, in a few evenings, the basis of correct playing.

Nationally Advertised. The Gulbransen is regularly advertised in The Saturday Evening Post, The American Magazine and The Literary Digest—and additional guaranty of its high standing in the commercial world.

We advertise the four models of the Gulbransen at the four nationally established cash prices. The Community model is $450. The Suburban model is $530. The Country Seat model is $615. The White House model is $700. Generous terms may be arranged, interest being charged on deferred payments. Naturally the more expensive models are better. But the most inexpensive model made, the Community at $450, is a splendidly built, dependable instrument that we are proud to put in any home.

If you want a good dependable instrument that you can play, made by a reputable manufacturer, and sold at a fair price, come in and let us show you the GULBRANSEN.

Compare before you decide.

The Melody Indicator is a patented and exclusive Gulbransen feature. It shows at a glance whether notes are in bass or treble, so you will know where to accent them.

Play any roll. Even the finest electric reproducing player rolls may be played on your Gulbransen.

You are not restricted in your choice of rolls.

Singers, note this. In playing song rolls you can play any ordinary song roll as an accompaniment—eliminating the melody entirely. This is possible only on the Gulbransen Registering Piano.

$295

buys a Gulbransen Upright Piano playable by hand, by pedals or electrically. Other models of Gulbransen Upright Pianos are $350 and $440.

$450

buys a Gulbransen Registering Piano, playable by hand or pedals. Other models of Gulbransen Registering Pianos are $530, $615 and $700.

$770

buys a Gulbransen Reproducing Piano, playable by hand, by pedals or electrically. Other models of Gulbransen Reproducing Pianos are $855 and $940.

All of the above prices are the cash prices, branded in the back of each instrument at the factory for your protection. We also have a liberal deferred payment plan on which you can buy a Gulbransen for a small initial payment and convenient monthly installments. Ask us about this if you don't want to pay all cash.

The Strain Of Traffic Driving

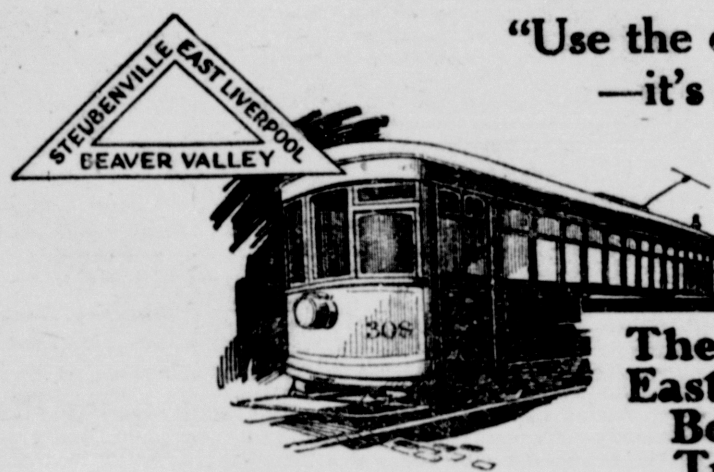

Regardless of how careful a driver you may be, there still remains the reckless driver who endangers your car if not the life of yourself or loved ones.

The beginner in the driving game, the fellow who tries to beat the traffic signal, the man who tries to gain seconds by sneaking ahead of you, and the "corner cutter," all are menaces to sane and safe driving.

Driving in traffic today is a continual strain—always on the guard to prevent a serious accident. It's easy to escape this tiresome worry. Use your auto by all means, it's just right for week-end trips—for a quick run into the country—for an evening picnic; but for city driving, to the store, or office, or shop, or theater—take the street car.

Here you can ride safely and comfortably. No delay, no worry about parking when you get there. Your own car is safe at home waiting for the evening ride.

Play any roll. Even the finest electric reproducing player rolls may be played on your Gulbransen.

You are not restricted in your choice of rolls.

GRAND JURY TO MEET THURSDAY

Special Session Called to Investigate Number of Cases.

A special session of the grand jury will convene Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock, when all murder and robbery cases for which transcripts have been returned to the clerk of courts will be investigated. The order for the grand jury to convene was issued by Judge James G. Moore Monday before adjournment.

"We cannot tell at this time just how many cases will be investigated," declared Prosecuting Attorney J. C. Hanley. "There are a number of people now in jail awaiting disposition of the grand jury, and these cases will be gone over. The jury may be in session two days."

This is the second time this year that the grand jury has been summoned in extra session, the last special session being in July. It is the purpose of Prosecuting Attorney Hanley to clean up all criminal work he can before retiring from office January next.

Should the grand jury complete its work this week it is very likely that arraignment day will be set for next week.

County Home Stucco Work Delayed; Firm Balks On Contract

That the National Kellerstone company, of Chicago, Ill., has two prices for its product in this county, it was explained to the county commissioners this week, when M. R. Montague, of Alliance, who was awarded the contract for placing a stucco finish on the brick buildings at the county home.

Montague got a price of $39 per ton for this stucco stone from a salesman from the Cleveland office of this company, and when confirmation was asked from the Cleveland office on this price Montague was told that the price would be $45 per ton, and that they had a jobber in Columbiana county and this contract was in the territory of that jobber.

The commissioners immediately canceled the Montague bid and then passed a resolution to readvertise the job, which had been awarded to Montague at $4.95. The new advertising will be for labor, and another advertisement will be for material. It was brought out at the meeting of the commissioners that the salesman for the Kellerstone people did quote Montague $39 per ton for their material, and he framed his bid on this quotation. When confirmation of the quotation was refused, and Montague being advised that their salesman had no right to offer such a quotation and that the market price was $45 per ton, Montague stood to lose $192, the extra price for 32 tons of the material required to stucco the buildings.

"We'll not stand for anything like that," declared Commissioner Patrick McNicol. "We were out to get the best job possible at the lowest price, and when a salesman quotes a market price for a material, it is our opinion that the home office should confirm such quotations, no matter who is the purchaser."

As a result of this contract cancellation, the stucco job at the county home will be held up for probably another month.

ROAD GRADING TO BE CONTINUED

Middletown township trustees went before the county commissioners this week and explained that they had purchased a right of way in that township for the grading of the new East Palestine-East Liverpool road. Last week the commissioners were informed that the Middletown trustees had no money to spend on this road. However, a right of way through the Moore farm, south of Achon, is to be obtained by the trustees, and grading on this road will continue immediately northward.

Commissioners Cut Down Office Budgets For Fiscal Year

Office expense budgets for every office in the court house have been pruned by the county commissioners, time for approval of the budgets for 1925 having expired Monday.

County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk asked for $21,000 and this was pared to $11,000. It is understood, however, that when additional funds are required for both inside and outside office help the commissioners will counsel with the surveyor about additional expense.

In the office of the clerk of courts the 1924 budget was set at $6,120 and $6,780 was asked for 1925. The board approved the 1924 appropriation without any increase.

In the recorder's office $6,500 was asked for 1925, and this was reduced to $5,679, the same as has prevailed during 1924.

Sheriff Gomer Lewis had his appropriation of $5,400 for 1924 approved for 1925.

County Treasurer Joe Pike asked approval of a budget for $7,500, but this was cut down to $6,700, the same as prevailed during 1924.

In the probate office the 1924 appropriation of $6,300 was approved, which is the same as 1924. The budget asked for $6,540 for 1925.

COUNTY TRUCKS FOR ROAD WORK

County trucks will be used in the improvement of two roads in this county, while township trustees will take care of the expense of placing slag on two roads.

Fairfield township trustees will pay for drivers, gas and oil for the use of two trucks while slag is being spread on the road extending north from the Cox highway at the Firestone farm to the northern township line, connecting with the road to Youngstown in Mahoning county. The trustees will also furnish either slag or clinders for this road.

On the Lisbon-Franklin Square road the Centre township trustees will furnish the slag, as the county will furnish the trucks and drivers.

Both jobs are to be undertaken immediately, so that the roads will be "out of the mud" before winter sets in.

THE POWER OF MIND OVER MATTER

Bankruptcy Place Vacant; Leetonia Attorney Resigns

"I quit the job just four years to the minute after I went on it," declared Attorney W. E. Warren, of Leetonia, who has resigned as referee in bankruptcy in this county. "Four years was enough of the job, and now that I am out of it I will have more time to take care of my private business."

Hereafter, and until other arrangements are made, all Columbiana county bankruptcy cases will be heard before Referee in Bankruptcy Paul E. Carson, 202 Federal building, Youngstown.

Bankruptcy hearings will be held in Lisbon every Thursday, according to the present arrangement, this plan having been suggested so that principals and witnesses will not have to make the journey to Youngstown. There are always on an average of 50 bankruptcy cases pending in Columbiana county and on an average of 15 are disposed of during a year, according to the records of Mr. Warren.

GRAND JURY TO MEET THURSDAY

Special Session Called to Investigate Number of Cases.

A special session of the grand jury will convene Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock, when all murder and robbery cases for which transcripts have been returned to the clerk of courts will be investigated. The order for the grand jury to convene was issued by Judge James G. Moore Monday before adjournment.

"We cannot tell at this time just how many cases will be investigated," declared Prosecuting Attorney J. C. Hanley. "There are a number of people now in jail awaiting disposition of the grand jury, and these cases will be gone over. The jury may be in session two days."

This is the second time this year that the grand jury has been summoned in extra session, the last special session being in July. It is the purpose of Prosecuting Attorney Hanley to clean up all criminal work he can before retiring from office January next.

Should the grand jury complete its work this week it is very likely that arraignment day will be set for next week.

County Home Stucco Work Delayed; Firm Balks On Contract

That the National Kellerstone company, of Chicago, Ill., has two prices for its product in this county, it was explained to the county commissioners this week, when M. R. Montague, of Alliance, who was awarded the contract for placing a stucco finish on the brick buildings at the county home.

Montague got a price of $39 per ton for this stucco stone from a salesman from the Cleveland office of this company, and when confirmation was asked from the Cleveland office on this price Montague was told that the price would be $45 per ton, and that they would be the job in Columbiana county and this contract was in the territory of that jobber.

The commissioners immediately canceled the Montague bid and then passed a resolution to readvertise the job, which had been awarded to Montague at $4,950. The new advertisement will be for labor, and another advertisement will be for material. It was brought out at the meeting of the commissioners that the salesman for the Kellerstone people did quote Montague $39 per ton for their material, and he framed his bid on this quotation. When confirmation of the quotation was refused, and Montague being advised that their salesman had no right to offer such a quotation and that the market price was $45 per ton, Montague stood to lose $192, the extra price for 32 tons of the material required to stucco the buildings.

"We'll not stand for anything like that," declared Commissioner Patrick McNicol. "We were out to get the best job possible at the lowest price, and when a salesman quotes a market price for a material, it is our opinion that the home office should confirm such quotations, no matter who is the purchaser."

As a result of this contract cancellation, the stucco job at the county home will be held up for probably another month.

Middleton township trustees went before the county commissioners this week and explained that they had purchased a right of way in that township for the grading of the new East Palestine-East Liverpool road. Last week the commissioners were informed that the Middleton trustees had no money to spend on this road. However, a right of way through the Moore farm, south of Achor, is to be obtained by the trustees, and grading on this road will continue immediately northward.

Physician-Farmer Aged 83, Gets Fourth Marriage License

Joseph M. Ray, a physician-farmer, residing at Point Pleasant, W. Va., and aged 83 years and married three times, is to be married the fourth time, his bride being Mrs. Sophronia Statts, aged 66 years, of East Liverpool, who has also been married thrice. The couple have been granted a marriage license, but have not announced who will perform the ceremony.

Mr. Ray is the oldest person to apply for a marriage license in Columbiana county this year, and it is the first time in many years that a couple have announced that each have been married three times previously.

A marriage license has been granted to E. E. Gause, a farmer, of Kensington, and Miss Anna Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bryan, of Summitville. Miss Bryan has been employed as a telephone operator.

George Lipynac and Miss Anna Kozar, both of Salem, have been granted a marriage license.

Ralph R. Vess, a potter, and Miss Kathryn Ann Walter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Walter, of East Liverpool, have secured a marriage license and will be married by the Rev. B. R. Johnson, of the Christian church of East Liverpool.

Commissioners Cut Down Office Budgets For Fiscal Year

Office expense budgets for every office in the court house have been pruned by the county commissioners, time for approval of the budgets for 1925 having expired Monday.

County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk asked for $21,000 and this was pared to $11,000. It is understood, however, that when additional funds are required for both inside and outside office help the commissioners will counsel with the surveyor about additional expense.

In the office of the clerk of courts the 1924 budget was set at $6,120 and $6,780 was asked for 1925. The board approved the 1924 appropriation without any increase.

In the recorder's office $6,600 was asked for 1925, and this was reduced to $5,679, the same as has prevailed during 1924.

Sheriff Gomer Lewis had his appropriation of $5,400 for 1924 approved for 1925.

County Treasurer Joe Pike asked approval of a budget for $7,500, but this was cut down to $6,700, the same as prevailed during 1924.

In the probate office the 1924 appropriation of $6,300 was approved, which is the same as 1924. The budget asked for $6,540 for 1925.

COUNTY TRUCKS FOR ROAD WORK

County trucks will be used in the improvement of two roads in this county, while township trustees will take care of the expense of placing slag on two roads.

Fairfield township trustees will pay for drivers, gas and oil for the use of two trucks while slag is being spread on the road extending north from the Cox highway at the Firestone farm to the northern township line, connecting with the road to Youngstown in Mahoning county. The trustees will also furnish either slag or cinders for this road.

On the Lisbon-Franklin Square road the Centre township trustees will furnish the slag, as the county will furnish the trucks and drivers.

Both jobs are to be undertaken immediately, so that the roads will be "out of the mud" before winter sets in.

THE POWER OF MIND OVER MATTER

Bankruptcy Place Vacant; Leetonia Attorney Resigns

"I quit the job just four years to the minute after I went on it," declared Attorney W. E. Warren, of Leetonia, who has resigned as referee in bankruptcy in this county. "Four years was enough of the job, and now that I am out of it I will have more time to take care of my private business."

Hereafter, and until other arrangements are made, all Columbiana county bankruptcy cases will be heard before Referee in Bankruptcy Paul E. Carson, 292 Federal building, Youngstown.

Bankruptcy hearings will be held in Lisbon every Thursday, according to the present arrangement, this plan having been suggested so that principals and witnesses will not have to make the journey to Youngstown. There are always on an average of 50 bankruptcy cases pending in Columbiana county and on an average of 15 are disposed of during a year, according to the records of Mr. Warren.

Ohio Conference Interest Shifts to Next Games of 'Place' Teams

Case and Wittenberg Near Close With One Defeat In Each Case

Oberlin and Wesleyan Apparently Tied for Leadership; "Show" Teams Mount and Wooster, With Odds on Removal of Former.

By Stanley D. Koch.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11.—With Oberlin and Ohio Wesleyan apparently tied neck at the stretch with the tape only a game away, the interest in the Ohio Conference football race has shifted to the place and show teams.

In the former category are the Case and Wittenberg eleven, each with one defeat charged against it and that one, naturally enough, suffered at the hands of the league leaders. The coming weekend game for the scientists is against Baldwin-Wallace at Berea, and should prove only a fair workout before the Western Reserve game, the following Saturday.

In the defeat of Wooster, Case showed the indomitable courage that prompts a team to sweep its hitherto unswappable opposition before it in a coalward march which must succeed or the marching team will lose the game. It is a drive, created by necessity and desperation and only an eleven fraught with that spiritual determination can properly coordinate its physical abilities toward the end. Such a team is Case, because that mental poise has been Coach Fletcher's chief lesson this year.

The Brown and White mentor has eight letter men of last year gracing the substitutes' bench. He has completely remodeled the Cast football machine, taught in the two "P's"—"Fight" and "Fundamentals."

If the Ohio Conference race has shown one sensation this season, it is the proof that coaching is still an all-important part of a successful football team.

Wittenberg, the other place team at present, meets sterner opposition in Mt. Union—Alliance. True, the Mounts have been in-and-outers, and have intermittently played as good and as bad football as is collegiately possible, but Wittenberg has too much stuff to enter the game as anything but favorite. Ernie Godfrey, the Lutheran's mentor, has found his eleven in exactly the same position as last year—defeated by Ohio Wesleyan alone. Last week, Muskingum suffered from the spirit of vengeance emanating from Springfield and it looks as if Mt. Union is due for the same treatment.

The two "show" teams are Wooster and Mt. Union, with the odds indicating the removal of the Alliance contingent from that position. Wooster, meeting its second unexpected defeat at the hands of Case, finds its collective joins to meet Cincinnati at Wooster. The Bearcats have shown no offense, although the Cincinnati defense has been fair. But losing two games a season is a habit entirely foreign to Coach Boles and should a third game be dropped, some radical change would shake the campus of the college of Wooster, which might even cause Coach Boles to drop his golf playing. And since he is the champion of the county, that would be a deplorable loss, with the probable result that the black and gold will beat Cincinnati. For on such little bits of pride, are football victories determined.

The one barrier to the championship claims of the Oberlin eleven will be met this weekend at Oberlin, when Miami comes North for the annual melee. For the last two years, Oberlin has triumphed over the Oxfordians, 2-0 in 1922 and 13-6 in 1923. Needless to say, these defeats have not rested placidly in the assembled Miami bosoms and the down State team will go into the battle with a ferocity which can be sated by a Crimson and Gold defeat.

Western Reserve, whose win over Miami last week gave it an even-up rating, plays Kenyon at Cleveland. Like many of the other eleven, the Gambier outfit is a problem. It's either a smart eleven playing in intermittent tough luck or a weak team, helped by the occasional strokes of fortune. So far the Episcopalians' chief scoring method has been by forward passes. This will necessarily be the case, for the pioneer line is much stronger, although Miami counted three touchdowns against it. With more of the regular backs returning each game, the Pioneer are looking like a better eleven and are favored to top.

Because of the unexpected show of strength against Ohio Northern which ended in the win for the Big Red, 14-0, the Granville crew should defeat Ohio University at Athens Saturday. The green and white is only a fair team and unless the win over the Polar Bears was a strange accident, the Athenians are prepared to meet the same fate.

Meanwhile, Ohio Northern runs to another hard game, for Heidelberg has been progressing rapidly and showing reasonable good form. The Tiffinites are scheduled to be hosts for the Norsemen and may slip over a victory, although on paper the Ada adherents are a better eleven. Muskingum and Otterbein tangle at Westerville Friday in an even-steven clash with the odds, if any, slightly in favor of the Muskies. Otterbein's record this year is far below last year's standard and unless a revival of the 1923 form sets in, the United Brethren will have only one conference victory to their credit.

Two Ohio conference teams step outside that sphere this week, Ohio Wesleyan playing Butler at Indianapolis and Akron tackling Ashland at Akron, the Wesleyan-Butler game will be particularly interesting because Iowa was only able to defeat Butler 7-0 at Iowa City and the Page-coached eleven made a fairly decent showing against Illinois, scoring 10 points against the orange and blue.

"REMEMBER LAST YEAR!"

Tad Shouts at Bill, But Latter Doesn't Hear Him

What the governor of North Carolina told the governor of South Carolina is still a mystery. And you'll have to hazard your own guess as to what Tad Jones (left), Yale coach, is telling Bill Roper, Princeton mentor, as the two prep their teams for the annual game. Jones may be saying, "Remember that 27 to 0 score last season." Roper is saying nothing and saying football.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

BY NOBMAN E. BROWN

Before another football season rolls around another change in the provisions for the kickoff will be made. That is assured now, with the end of the present season still a few weeks off.

The present rule, which calls for kicking off the ball from midfield instead of the 40-yard line, has already proved a blunder on the part of the rules committee.

The change was made to meet what officials expected to be a new condition created at the same time by the elimination of the "tee" for the kickoff. They believed that the prohibiting of an artificial base for the ball would shorten the distance obtained by the kickers. To neutralize this they moved the location of the ball nearer the opponent's goal line.

Now, however, they are aware of the fact that the good kickers find little trouble in getting almost as much distance to their kicks from heel-made grooves as they did from raised toes.

And the result is that 90 per cent of the kickoffs are landing behind the enemy's goal line. The ball is then carried out and put in play on the 20-yard line.

This makes the kickoff of little value from any viewpoint. In the opinion of many experts it could be dispensed with and the ball first placed in play on the 20 yard line of the side losing the toss.

When the ball was booted from the 40-yard line the receiver frequently had an opportunity, behind good interference, of getting the ball back well beyond the 20-yard line. Ask Red Grange. With the ball landing behind the goal line the kicking side has no chance to recover the ball through fumble or nail the runner "in his tracks," always a thrill of the game in the past.

Some coaches, awake to the weakness of the new rule, have attempted to outwit their opponents and the rule makers by having their kickers apparently "top" the ball when they kick it. This causes the ball to bound along the field. The temptation to endeavor to fall on it or pick it up and run with it is great. The moment and opponent does get his hands on it—and misses it—the ball is in play, of course, and the kicking side has a 50-50 chance of retaining possession of the ball within the shadow of the opposition's goal line.

The two outstanding stars of the British golf firmament of 1924 are Joyce Wethered and E. R. Whitcombe. They performed as brilliantly for England as Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen did for Uncle Sam.

Whitcombe is the young gentleman who led Walter Hagen most of the way in the British open championship and finished one stroke behind the American meteor.

In the more recent news of the world tournament, which is the British equivalent of the American pro tourney, Whitcombe proved himself easily the class of the field. Miss Wethered, regaining her title as British women's champion, placed herself well above all competition. She not only won the British women's open title but took the closed event later.

Mountaineers Prepare For W.&L. Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 11—

It will be several days before Mountaineer football fans recover from the surprise of West Virginia's impressive victory over Colgate. The work of all the first string players in that battle is still the sole topic of conversation on the streets here and once more the team's followers are stirred.

The Mountaineer team was at its best last Saturday and showed the same class and power that marked the 1923 victory over Rutgers, Washington and Lee and St. Louis University. Every man was doing the right thing at the right time and in the short space of a week what had been a feeble interference was transformed into a human cyclone. Gus Ekberg played the greatest game of his career and he was co-starred with "Skeet" Farley, Ed. Morrison, Brudner, Nick Narducci and other backs. Close observers know that the line play was just as spectacular.

New hopes are being built as the West Virginia squad prepares for this week's game with Washington and Lee plebes. The Mountaineer yearlings were guilty of more loose playing in the California Normal game last Friday and for the third time this year their mistakes were disastrous. However, they are expected to go into tomorrow's game well-fortified and determined to wipe out certain defeats.

Philadelphia and Boston can no longer be made the butt of jokes concerning poor attendance at ball games. In Dublin, Ireland, the Giants and White Sox played before less than 20 spectators.

Ty Cobb got only $1 for his first professional ball game.—by my, oh my, Uncle Jeremiah, how that solitary iron man has grown!

Mike McTigue may be a weak hitter, but he certainly shows wonderful footwork in dodging Tunney's challenges.

The guy who offered $300,000 for Epinaro probably figured to get the money back by playing the nag to place in every race.

Now that seven players on the Athletics have had their tonsils removed, next year we may expect them to yell at the umps louder than ever.

Ohio Conference Interest Shifts to Next Games of 'Place' Teams

Case and Wittenberg Near Close With One Defeat In Each Case

Oberlin and Wesleyan, Apparently Tied for Leadership; 'Show' Teams Mount and Wooster, With Odds on Removal of Former.

By Stanley D. Koch.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11.—With Oberlin and Ohio Wesleyan apparently tied neck at the stretch with the tape only a game away, the interest in the Ohio Conference football race has shifted to the place and show teams.

In the former category are the Case and Wittenberg elevens. Each with one defeat charged against it and that one, naturally enough, suffered at the hands of the league leaders. The coming week-end game for the scientists is against Baldwin Wallace at Berea, and should prove only a fair workout before the Western Reserve game, the following Saturday.

In the defeat of Wooster, Case showed the indomitable courage that prompts a team to sweep its hitherto unswappable opposition before it in a goalward march which must succeed or the marching team will lose the game. It is a drive, created by necessity and desperation and only an eleven fraught with that spiritual determination can properly coordinate its physical abilities toward the end. Such a team is Case, because that mental poise has been Coach Fletcher's chief lesson this year.

The Brown and White mentor has eight letter men of last year gracing the substitutes' bench. He has completely remodeled the Cast football machine, taught in the two "F's"—"Fight" and "Fundamentals."

If the Ohio Conference race has shown one sensation this season, it is the proof that coaching is still an all-important part of a successful football team.

Wittenberg, the other place team at present, meets sterner opposition in Mt. Union at Alliance. True, the Mounts have been in-and-outers, and have intermittently played as good, and as bad football as is collegiately possible, but Wittenberg has too much stuff to enter the game as anything but favorite. Ernie Godfrey, the Lutheran's mentor, has found his eleven in exactly the same position as last year—defeated by Ohio Wesleyan alone. Last week, Muskingum suffered from the spirit of vengeance emanating from Springfield and it looks as if Mt. Union is due for the same treatment.

The two "show" teams are Wooster and Mt. Union, with the odds indicating the removal of the Alliance contingent from that position. Wooster, meeting its second unexpected defeat at the hands of Case, girds its coils.

"REMEMBER LAST YEAR!"

Tad Shouts at Bill, But Latter Doesn't Hear Him

What the governor of North Carolina told the governor of South Carolina is still a mystery. And you'll have to hazard your own guess as to what Tad Jones (left), Yale coach, is telling Bill Roper, Princeton mentor, as the two prep their teams for the annual game. Jones may be saying, "Remember that 27 to 0 score last season." Roper is saying nothing and saving football.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

BY NORMAN E. BROWN

Before another football season rolls around another change in the provisions for the kickoff will be made. That is assured now, with the end of the present season still a few weeks off.

The present rule, which calls for kicking off the ball from midfield instead of the 40-yard line, has already proved a blunder on the part of the rules committee.

The change was made to meet what officials expected to be a new condition created at the same time by the elimination of the "tee" for the kickoff. They believed that the prohibiting of an artificial base for the ball would shorten the distance obtained by the kickers. To neutralize this they moved the location of the ball nearer the opponent's goal line.

Now, however, they are aware of the fact that the good kickers find little trouble in getting almost as much distance to their kicks from raised tees.

And the result is that 90 per cent of the kickoffs are landing behind the enemy's goal line. The ball is then carried out and put in play on the 20-yard line.

This makes the kickoff of little value from any viewpoint. In the opinion of many experts it could be dispensed with and the ball first placed in play on the 20 yard line of the side losing the toss.

When the ball was booted from the 40-yard line the receiver frequently had an opportunity, behind good interference, of getting the ball back well beyond the 20-yard line. Ask Red Grange. With the ball landing behind the goal line the kicking side has no chance to recover the ball through fumble or nail the runner "in his tracks," always a thrill of the game in the past.

Some coaches, awake to the weakness of the new rule, have attempted to outwit their opponents and the rule makers by having their kickers apparently "top" the ball when they kick it. This causes the ball to bound along the field. The temptation to endeavor to fall on it or pick it up and run with it is great. The moment and opponent does get his hands on it — and misses it—the ball is in play, of course, and the kicking side has a 50-50 chance of regaining possession of the ball within the shadow of the opposition's goal line.

The two outstanding stars of the British golf firmament of 1924 are Joyce Wethered and E. R. Whitcombe. They performed as brilliantly for England as Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen did for Uncle Sam.

Whitcombe is the young gentleman who led Walter Hagen most of the way in the British open championship and finished one stroke behind the American meteor. In the more recent news of the world tournament, which is the British equivalent of the American pro tourney, Whitcombe proved himself easily the class of the field. Miss Wethered, regaining her title as British women's champion, placed herself well above all competition. She not only won the British women's open title but took the closed event later.

Easterday to Give Tigers Signals For Steubenville Games

Former Pitt Star to Handle Backfield With Kidder Coaching Line; Squad to Drill Three days Prior to Each Clash.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Elaborate preparations are being made by the management of the Tigers for the Torontonian Steubenville series, which open Sunday at Steubenville.

First and foremost among the preparations, Manager Tarr announced, are arrangements to bring the entire squad—18 in all—to Kileus field for steady signal drill for three days before each game. A set of signals will be given the big black and yellow squad and many new plays practiced. "Steubenville," the manager says, "as well as practically every team in the district knows the Tigers' signals. In the last game the Duquesne Apprentices knew every play until we started 'blind signals' and threw them off their track."

"With Steubenville it is a necessity that the Colletian squad does not know our signals, and we are going to revamp the entire system and put the men through a steady workout to learn 'em before a week from Sunday."

"We have blood in our eyes and we're going to beat Steubenville 'or bust'."

Coach Kidder, who assumed command of the Tiger squad in the "Dukes" game, will train the line thoroughly, with coaching of the backfield probably going to "Katy" Easterday, former Pitts star and later backfield coach at Bethany. The two local fans believe, will build up a team that will hold the Collegians down and beat them in the last half.

Fans here believe their line to be impregnable. The Akron pros, were the only team to gain much through the Toronto line and the mistakes there have been remedied in the meantime. The Dukes last Sunday failed to make a single good gain by that method.

Undesirable Friend.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 15 years old and my best friend is 18. After months of intimate companionship we have had a disagreement over another girl which has severed our friendship. The girl who is causing the trouble is in my viewpoint an undesirable acquaintance. I told my friend that it would be necessary for her to choose between us. She has been having a hard time deciding which one she should take. Last week she choose the other one and since that time I have come to realize how much she meant to me. How can I persuade her that I love her and want her as a friend?

HOPEFUL HORTENSE.

We were wrong in trying to force your viewpoint on your friend. She could see nothing wrong with the other girl and in fairness chose her instead of you. Admit your mistake and say you are sorry you tried to dictate to her and that you hope she will forgive you and be your friend too.

Forbidden Freedom.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 15 years old. All summer I stayed with my mother. Now I am staying with my father in another town. I don't want to stay here because I am not allowed my freedom and cannot even talk to any one. It is a very small town with no place to go. My father will not allow any girls to come to see me and he won't let me talk to them. He never lets me go any place unless he goes along. The rest of the girls go and have good times, but I have to stay at home. He won't even allow my half sister to come to see me. I cannot go to town to work because I am not old enough. I know I cannot stand it here all winter. When I stay with my mother I have to go to a school which I do not like. Could I get a position and at the same time go to school? What shall I do?

JIP.

You are not old enough to leave your father and work. About the only way out of your difficulties is to appeal to your mother to see what she can do to give you more freedom. Perhaps she will be able to take you back, which I think would be preferable to living as you are now even if you have to attend a school you do not like. Conditions in life are rarely perfect and one disagreeable thing or another has to be made the best of. Your father has no right to keep you out of school and if he does, re-gether steady most of the time for six months. He has proposed to me and I have accepted. He is always talking to me about when we get married. Do you think he really cares for me? Is five years too much difference in our ages? My parents also think a lot of him.

BETTY BLACK.

A girl in her teens is rather young to decide definitely that she loves some one enough to marry him. Five years is not too much difference in your ages, however, since the man is older than you are. Surely he loves you or he would not ask you to marry him.

Heart-Broken At 16.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 16 years old and love a boy 20. I have been going with this boy for four months and I know I love him better than the girl he goes to see and as much as any girl ever loved. He left me three weeks ago and he told me he would be back the next week, but I haven't seen him since. I heard he was going with another girl. I know I love him better than any fellow I have ever gone with. I think of him often and dream of him. I cannot sleep at night for thinking of him. How can I gain his love? He tells me that I don't care anything for him, but no one can ever tell how much I love him. Do you think he will ever care anything for me?

HEART-BROKEN AT 16.

Love at 16 is a very serious matter. It seems so hopeless, but in reality it rarely lasts. The wise thing for you to do is to forget the young man as quickly as possible, but I know you really don't want to do that. There is genuine satisfaction in suffering because of unrequited love, but it is a foolish way to spend time and thought. Just as soon as you hold your thoughts in check and force an interest in other people and other things you will find yourself forgetting about the boy.

Only Woman in New Congress Is Fifth to Sit in Lower House

Despite the great success that women candidates met with generally in the recent election, only one woman will be a member of congress after March. She is Mrs. Mary Norton (center), Democrat, elected from a New Jersey district. She is the fifth woman to sit in the lower house. The others were: (above) Miss Alice Robertson (left) of Oklahoma, Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck of Illinois. Below: Miss Jeannette Rankin (left) of Montana, and Mrs. Mae Nolan of California.

At the time of the arrest of Esapovich it was alleged a small quantity of moonshine was found aboard the truck. Esapovich came into court later and entered a plea of nolo contendere or no defense. Detective Dan M. Baker began proceedings to have the truck sold as contraband under the law. Esapovich filed an answer in which he declared that the liquor was not for commercial purposes but for his own consumption and that the truck was used in his business as a grocer.
